Senate Ag Committee Hears More On Nutrient Management

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee heard additional testimony — emotional and scientific — on nutrient management Wednesday during a special hearing in the Capitol Building.

The purpose of the meeting was to provide another forum for committee members to learn more about what has become somewhat of a controversial issue, before putting any proposals out before the full Senate.

Most testimony was as expected, especially opposition statements on H.B. 496 by a group of more than 100 Amishmen from several different counties in Pennsylvania as presented by Lancaster farmer-Amish spokesman Allen Weicksel.

His comments, on behalf of the Amish and some other non-Amish who are joined in a group called the Family Farm Movement, repeated statements printed and made previously through newspaper articles or during meetings.

Bascially, their requests focus on consideration of no bill, and then if a bill, one that denies full regulatory and enforcement by the state Department of Environmental Resources (DER).

What they seek is to be left alone with guidelines, and, if regulated, to have enforcement carried out by officers for the state Department of Agriculture, which is viewed as a sympathetic-to-farmers bureau.

Weiksel also presented to the committee a simple mathmatical comparison between the amount of nitrogen that crops in the Susquehanna River watershed need in order to produce a profitable crop and the amount of nitrogen applied, not including that within the soil.

The result of the comparison, according to Weiksel, was that not enough nitrogen is spread on crop fields within the watershed to ensure a profitable harvest.

The comparison was performed by two Lancaster County extension agents.

But the most dramatic news presented was by both Sen. Edward Helfrick, chairman of the commit-

Legislator Proposes Tougher Animal Disease Laws

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In an attempt to toughen Pennsylvania's ability to control contagious animal diseases, a Bucks County representative is planning to propose changes to two existing laws within the next 10 days.

If enacted, the legislation would give the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) the authority to test and condemn deer and other non-traditional farm animals and all captive animals.

It would also establish a condemnation and compensation program for those wild or semi-wild animals held in captivity.

Rep. Paul Clymer, sponsor of the bill, said, "The people who had contacted me, the vets who have seen the problem, feel as helpless as anyone when nothing can be done (to control disease in non-traditional farm animals or pets).

"It's just sound preventative maitenance for animals, whether farm animals or captive animals," he said, "and it makes a lot of sense. It will help Pennsylvania agriculture in the broad spectrum.

"It's something that should have been looked at for a long time," he said.

"We have to take preventative

Growers Believe Proper Timing Helps Ensure Bountiful Tomato Harvest

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — "Ninety percent of making a profit in tomatoes, corn, or whatever is timing. If you can't get the work done on time and in the correct fashion, you aren't going to make it," said Dale Frank.

Frank, who grows tomatoes under partnership with Steve Hershey, believes that weather conditions, healthy transplants, and management command a farmer's attention from planting all the way through harvest season.

Both farmers were challenged with their beliefs the past summer, which saw record-breaking temperatures (the year in the county tied for the warmest ever) and a drought which devastated crops throught the state.

And even though both were honored for their work by the State Champion Tomato Growers' Club at the Vegetable Conference earlier this year in Hershey (Class 1, machine harvest, 60 or more acres), the tomato growers believe profits are more important than awards.

1,500 tons of fruit

Last year, Hershey and Frank harvested 1,500 tons of usable fruit on 60 acres for an average yield of 25 tons per acre. The acreage was divided evenly between Hershey, a dairy farmer, and Frank, who raises beef cattle. According to reports furnished at the conference by the Pennsylvania Tomato Processors, varieties grown were Ohio 8245, Peto 2196, LaRossa, Peto 696, Early Pear, and Ohio 7983.

Locally grown stock was transplated from May 1 through May 20 at 10,000 plants per acre. The plants were spaced in five feet rows at 10 inches apart.

Hershey and Frank use a three-row pull-behind carousel plug planter. At planting time, they use a starter fertilizer high in phosphorous.

Last year, the growers wetted down the plants with a hose before mounting them on the transplater trays. This year, however, the growers (who have expanded tomato production to 70 acres) plan to immerse the plants in water, soaking the roots before setting them in the soil.

Farm Lane Paving Scam Reported In Lancaster

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.)—A warning was issued from a local bank official this week to the effect that a firm with questionable practices for paving farm lanes was operating in Lancaster County. At least three Amish farmers were forced to pull $5,000 or more in cash out of their accounts in local banks to pay for paving from a company that has no address on their business card.

From an on-the-farm visit with an Amish farm family, the story they tell is typical of what has been reported from other farmers.

A truck loaded with oil and stone materials pulled into the farm, and the occupants said they had some material left over from a job and needed to get rid of the rest of the load somewhere. Since the farmer had some pot holes in a farm lane, and the price at 80 cents per foot seemed to be reasonable, he agreed to allow the men to dump the remainder of the load on the lane to cover the holes.

But the remainder of the load was large enough that "it never got all," the Amish farmer said. And the total bill was figured at 80 cents per square foot, not per running foot.

Because the bill was so large, the farmer insisted that payment wait for three days until he received the milk check. But rather than wait, the pavers reduced the price from 80 cents to 55 cents and continued to hassle the farm family until they went to the bank and borrowed the money and paid off the debt with 50 $100 bills.

Farmers need to be sure of the reputation of any company that comes to the farm to do business. On jobs as large as paving a lane, reputable companies will come to the farm and give estimates what the job will cost, including a final total of all charges.

These estimates will also include the written terms of payment required, plant location and references to check on the reputation of the company.

Don't be taken by a deal that seems to be too good to be true. It probably is.

N.E. Chicken Parts

May 6, 1992

Trucklot buying interest was irregular and ranged fair to good. Boneless skinless breasts were short of meeting a good demand for immediate needs. Line run breasts were adequate for trade needs at steady prices. Legs were fully adequate to ample for a light buying interest. Leg quarters were becoming more available and buyers became more cautious as first of the month needs slowed. Wings were available and slow to clear with asking prices trending lower.

Effective Dry Cow Nutrition Begins With New Sweetlix® En-Pro-Al® LactaMax® Blocks

Containing Zinpro® and Diamond V Yeast.®

New Sweetlix® En-Pro-Al® LactaMax® blocks are specifically formulated to prepare dry cows and springing heifers for lactation. The addition of Diamond V Yeast® culture, for maximum rumen fermentation, and Zinpros® proven ability, via field and university trials, to reduce somatic cell count can result in a positive impact on both the quality and quantity of milk produced when lactation begins. Furthermore, current research has shown that feeding selenium and Vitamin E during the dry period can decrease the incidence of mastitis. Add Sweetlix® En-Pro-Al's® predictable intake and you've got one heck of a dry cow program in a convenient 225 lb. non-returnable recyclable tub.

For maximum milk production and profitability, rely on new Sweetlix® En-Pro-Al® LactaMax® blocks

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MAY 11-17, 1992

THREE CHILLY SAINTS

May 11, 12, and 13, are the feast days of St. Mammertus, fifth-century Bishop of Vienne in France; St. Pancras, a fourth-century boy martyr in Rome, and St. Gervais (also Gervatius or Servatius) fourth-century Bishop of Tongres. In The Old Farmer's Almanac these are known as the Three Chilly Saints, not because they were cold during their lifetimes, but because these three days are traditionally the coldest of the month. English and French folklore (and later American) held that these days would always bring a late frost. In Germany, they were called the Icemänner, or Iceman days, and people believed it was never safe to plant until the Icemen were gone, but after that, the threat of frost was over for the season.

Who shears his sheep before St. Gervatius' Day loves more his wool than his sheep.

TIP OF THE WEEK

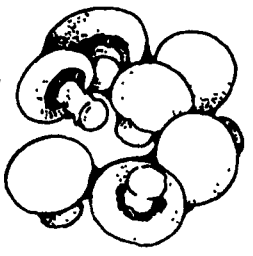
MUSHROOMS IN WINE



1 pound mushrooms
¼ cup butter
3 tablespoons chopped chives
3 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
6 tablespoons dry white wine
salt and pepper to taste

Slice mushrooms and saute in butter. Stir in remaining ingredients and simmer for 3-5 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

EARTHWISE

Once the last frost is past, it's time to store woolens. Wash and dry clothes completely before storing. There's no need for toxic mothballs with so many natural ways to discourage moths. Cedar, the traditional alternative, is available as oil, balls and animal shapes. Lavender is a good but mild deterent. Try mixing it with rosemary, tansy, and peppermint to increase effectiveness. Cloves or bay leaves can be scattered among the clothing or secured in cheesecloth packets. Or, simply sprinkle your clothes with black pepper to keep the moths away.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Clear north, cloudy and showers elsewhere; turning colder, cold snap north, warmer south.

SOUTHEAST: Clear and very warm, showers through coastal states; cold and thundershowers then clear and warm.

MIDWEST: Rainy and cool, sunny north, ending with clearing, sunny, and warmer

NORTHWEST: Sunny and warm, a few sprinkles toward week's end

OPINION

Take Action

Every year, the hog industry in the U.S. loses millions of dollars in decreased production from a single health problem...mange.

According to the American Association of Swine Practitioners, the effects of this insidious parasite are not as obvious as death loss, but mange does affect profitability in many hog herds.

If your pigs are mange infested at weaning, they may have lower weaning weights, and their rate of gain, feed efficiency and mortality rate can be quite poor. And weaner pigs with mange are especially susceptible to greasy pig disease, because of open wounds caused by scratching themselves. With a combination of mange and greasy pig disease, mortality can run as high as five to 10 percent if left unattended.

The most serious consequence of mange is reduced pig productivity and profits. Even low-level infestations can reduce feed efficiency in grower and finisher pigs, the veterinarian reports. In more severe cases, grower and finisher pigs infested with mange can require 10 to 12 percent more feed to gain the 200 pounds from 40 to 240 pounds. That gets to be a very expensive itch.

Mange can cause less obvious losses as well. A mange-free sow is not constantly irritated by the biting, burrowing mite, and will lay quietly for longer periods. This can result in less crushing of pigs. Milk production can be better and feed conversion can be improved.

The American Association of Swine Practitioners says you can reduce the obvious...and hidden...costs of mange. Take the first step today and have your veterinarian test your herd. Then take action against this costly parasite.

To Protect Skin From Pesticides

Now that we are in the spring planting season, we need to remember to handle pesticides safely.

When pouring granular insecticides, stand sidewind instead of downwind or upwind from the insecticide. If you keep the wind at your side, it will blow the dust away from you.

Based on a University of Illinois study, certain parts of your body absorb pesticides faster than other parts. Your scalp, forehead, and groin have the fastest absorption rate.

To avoid absorption, just cover up. Wear gloves, goggles, long sleeves, coveralls, or apron and a nonabsorbent plastic hat.

To Reduce Exposure From Pesticides

The following are ways you may reduce your exposure to pesticides:

• Always read and follow label instructions.

• Keep application equipment in good working order, especially hoses and valves.

• Maintain good personal hygiene. Wash with soap and water after using pesticides and before eating, smoking, or using the toilet.

• Routinely shower or bathe after work. Remove clothing and shower quickly if you get splashed or sprayed with a pesticide.

• Wash clothing daily and do not overfill the washing machine.

• Use about 25 per cent more detergent for work clothes than for a regular load.

• You may use chlorine bleach, unless you have been applying ammonia-based fertilizers or certain other products. Check label directions before washing.

To Prevent Ketosis In Dairy Cows

Rapid loss of flesh by cows in early lactations may lead to ketosis and fatty livers.

This causes impaired kidney function, which results in lowered resistance to stress and disease, more reproductive problems, and lower milk production.

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, offers the following ideas to help prevent these problems:

• Have cows on a good dry cow program and in proper flesh before calving.

• Have fresh feed and water readily available at all times and keep the mangers and waterers clean.

• Maximize dry matter and energy intake after calving. Do so gradually to avoid throwing cows off feed. Be sure they receive plenty of good quality forages.

• Keep the cow comfortable and minimize stress.

Farm Forum

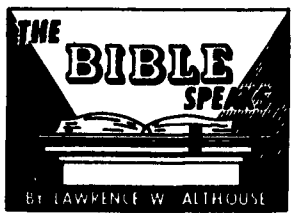
Editor:

Farmers Union recently held a series of meetings in rural communities and asked people to list their major concerns. Without exception, health care was always near the top of the list.

In urban and rural America, people are calling for health care reform. There are many reasons Farmers Union has called for a single payer national health care plan.

The Government Accounting Office estimates that $67 billion in administrative costs could be saved by switching to a single payer plan. In this system, all citizens could receive quality health care regardless of their medical history or financial situation.

President Bush has suggested a series of tax credits to address the nation's health care situation. The Congressional Budget Office says that such a system would only help the people who already have insurance. Why should we settle for a band-aid, solution when a plan that would reduce costs and



WANTED: A CLEAR CONSCIENCE

May 10, 1992

Background Scripture: I Peter 3:14 through 14:11.

Devotional Reading: Psalms 96:1-13.

One of the main things that people get wrong about being a disciple of Jesus Christ is on this question of suffering. Some people join the ranks of Christian disciples as a kind of insurance against having to suffer — either in the short or long run. Some of these people, then, are disillusioned when they find that Christian discipleship not only doesn't necessarily protect us against some types of suffering, but it may actually insure that we will suffer.

Essentially, we have three choices. First, we can try to avoid suffering by betraying our faith. That's what Peter did on the night when Jesus was betrayed: by denying that he even knew Jesus, he escaped suffering. Two, we can suffer deservedly for doing something wrong. Break a law or act unethically and there is usually a price to be paid. Lastly, we can hold fast to our faith, avoid wrongdoing, and suffer only for the sake of our faith. For Peter assures us: "...even if you suffer for righteousness' sake, you will be blessed" (3:14).

THE PRICE

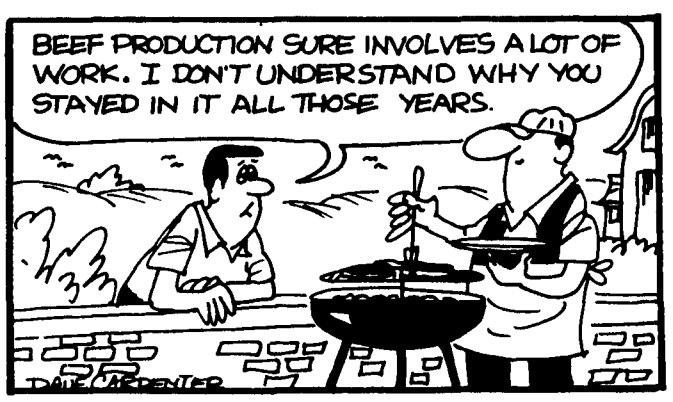
Peter goes on to say, "For it is better to suffer for doing right, if that should be God's will, than for doing wrong" (3:17). Is he saying that it might be God's will for us to suffer? No, I think he is saying that it is God's will that we remain faithful even if it causes us suffering. This is what bothers some people — the thought of "being good" but still having to suffer. But why should that so surprise us? Isn't this the example we have in Jesus, who suffered cruelly and died, "the righteous for the unrighteous." (3:18). Being the most righteous man ever did not save Jesus from suffering and death. If we are righteous, our righteousness will save us only from suffering that is deserved. Undeserved suffering, on the other hand, may be part of the price we have to pay to be faithful to Jesus Christ.

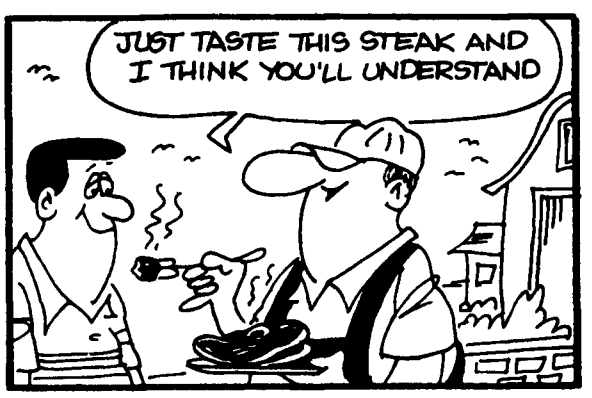
I have never believed that God means for us to suffer or causes it, but I do believe that God can use our suffering when it comes to us. So if we are made to pay a price for living as righteously as we can, we can also look for an opportunity to squeeze a blessing out of this suffering. This is why Peter says, "Always be prepared to make a defense to any one who calls you to account for the hope that is in you..." (3:15b). Christians should not seek to suffer or go looking for it but, when it comes, we can make something worthwhile of it by making it an occasion for witness.

THE GENTLE WITNESS

Peter puts a very important limitation on our witness: "do it with gentleness and reverence..." (3:15c). When people are persecuted, maligned, abused, and treated unfairly, they often respond to the evil that is done to them with evil that is equal to the occasion. The Christian, however, is called to respond with "gentleness and reverence." We may be able to understand an innocent victim's outrage, but we are not likely to be positively influenced by it. What made the death of Jesus so exemplary was the way in which he died, without bitterness, without rancor.

Like Jesus, we may be treated unfairly because of "the hope that is in us. Like Jesus we can make a "defense" of our faith. But there is a great difference between making a defense and making an attack. Attacking those who hurt us is understandably human. But it is usually also ineffective in persuading others. In fact, it usually makes them defensive and distorts their vision.





Farm Credit was born in a time when the work was hard. The market was uncertain. And farmers urgently needed a dependable source of credit.

The more things change, the more they stay the same.

In 1917, Farm Credit was established to provide farmers with reliable credit, on their kinds of terms. And ever since, tools have changed, times have changed. But one thing's remained constant: Farm Credit is America's most dependable source of credit to agriculture. And you can depend on us to be here in the years ahead. Call us next time you need credit. Because it's not just our heritage that binds us together. It's also our future.

FARMING FOR THE FUTURE with Aer-Way

➨ A new AERWAY can be your ticket to INCREASED PROFITS ➨
and help you comply to your conservation plan.

UNIVERSITY TESTS SHOW AERWAY-ING PAYS

- Increases yield and quality
- Important part of intensive hay and pasture management
- Helps conserve valuable soil, fertilizer and water.
- Reduces compaction
- Improves manure management
- Reduces run-off
- Promotes extended stand life

"This year we ran the Aer-Way over half the land where we had harvested corn silage. We then spread between 4,000-5,000 gallons of liquid manure per acre and disked the seed bed to prepare for small grains. We were absolutely amazed at the difference where we used the Aer-Way and one disking. My non-Aer-Wayed ground was disked 3 to 4 times and still wasn't as good. I would recommend the Aer-Way to other farmers as it softens the ground and lets rain and manure penetrate instead of running off."
W.W. Sandford III -
Kenwood Farm, Orange, Virginia

"Earlier this spring, I used the Aer-Way implement and Aer-Way chain harrow on my rolling pastureland. This was done to open up the ground to get water into the sloping grasslands. At the same time I pulled the Aer-Way chain harrow to scatter the cattle manure around. Even after the dry summer we had, I noticed that the Aer-Wayed ground held the moisture better and we got thicker and taller regrowth where we ran the machine."
DR. Rex Wilhelm D.V.M., Stuart, Iowa

"I have better pastures since I started using the Aer-Way to aerate and renovate my pastures. Using the Aer-Way has helped me get the nutrients where they are needed. I would not recommend fertilizing or liming without running the Aer-Way first."
Sandy Fisher, Brookview Farm - Beef Cattle Operation
Manakin-Sabot, Virginia

Grange Celebrates 125th, Meets Legislators

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Grange held its annual legislative day and banquet Monday at the Harrisburg Sheraton with hundreds of members attending workshops during the day and meeting and dining with state and federal legislators during the evening.

The Grange is a rural organization devoted to educating, acting as a collective voice, and working to improve living conditions for its members.

While the spring Grange legislative meeting normally coincides with the state legislature's last session before summer break, Grange policy was not decided during these workshop sessions. Policy is decided during the organization's October meeting.

This meeting was also noteworthy because this is the 125th anniversary of the National Grange, of which Pennsylvania is an affiliate. The occassion was marked with the presentation by state Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff of a plaque of appreciation for the efforts of the Grange for agriculture.

Indicative of some of the topics included during the day's afternoon workshops was a prediction by Eric Rabe of Bell of Pennsylvania, that businesses could possibly be attracted tot rural areas is a broad-banned, fiber optic telephone network were installed.

According to Rabe, the combination of low real estate prices, lower real estate taxes, and local work ethic in rural areas with dependable communication links to higher-density areas could provide an attractive package for businesses seeking a home.

"This is an issue that we need a lot of public debate on, particularly in terms of who's going to pay the cost and how soon it is done," said Susan Shanaman, a representative of an opposition group to Bell of Pennsylvania's costly proposal for a network of fiber-optic lines.

The two-sides of an issue presentations were indicative of the format for the workshops, designed to provide information and allow members to make their own decisions.

Currently, the majority of phone lines that are in place are voice capacity lines which have limited computer and video signal transmission capabilities.

The proposal by Bell is to install the optic telecommunication network which has the capability of tramsitte voice, video and computer signals rapidly.

According to Rabe, the impact would be better service for such things as rural medical services, which could have clear video signals relayed to a specialist in a city for diagnosis.

"If you live in a rural area, you can see what kind of advantage this would be," Rabe said.

Shanaman represented Pennsylvanians for Fair Affordable Competitive Telephone Service (PennFACTS), which is a coalition of organizations which oppose Bell's efforts.

According to Shanaman, if the okay were given to Bell to go ahead with the project, by the year 2015, 20 percent of Pennsylvania still would not have the service, but would have been paying for it all along.

A cheif executive officer at Bell has state that the cost of putting in the fiber-optic lines would cost between $15- to $50 billion, Shanaman said.

PennFACTS is also opposed to legislation which would remove the Pennsylvania Utilities Commission from reviewing telephone industry rate hikes.

"It is wonderful to talk about additional access to health care, access to education, but a lot of that is happening now, without giving up any kind of PUC review of how rates are set for the telephone industry," she told attending Grange members.

In another workshop, the One Plan concept, which promotes farm resource management as a total integrated strategy for the entire farm, was discussed.

Since each farm is different, no two plans can be exactly alike. A One Plan system would include every resource on the farm, access to other resources, quality and quantity of those resources, ways to improve,

Delaware Valley Student Writes

Editor's Note:
The following article was submitted for publication by Jennifer Reed, senior agribusiness major, Delaware Valley College at the request of professor, Dr. John Avery.

Can you imagine yourself chaperoning an overnight trip to Washington D.C. with twenty-one college students? Well our instructor, Dr. John Avery, did as part of our Food and Agricultural Policy class. The objective of the trip was to spend two days in D.C. researching a current policy that we were interested in. Then writing a ten to fifteen page paper on our personal opinion and whether we would endorse the policy or pan the policy. We were to arrange meetings with Senators, Congressmen, Lobbyists, etc. to question them on their position and how they felt about our topics. To us students it sounded like two days of misery.

These two days of dreaded torture turned out to be two of the most educational days of our college career. We researched various topics, a few examples are: The Wetlands of New Jersey, Nutrient Management, International Development and Trade Policy, Effects of Fertilizer and A Beginning Farmer Bill. We found everyone to be very helpful and quite informative. Our two days in Washington allowed us to see future laws, regulations and policies taking form. Also that there are a lot of potentially good things happening but we, the voting public, need to take a more active role in researching them and then encouraging our elected representatives to support these policies and bills that could be of great benefit to our society.

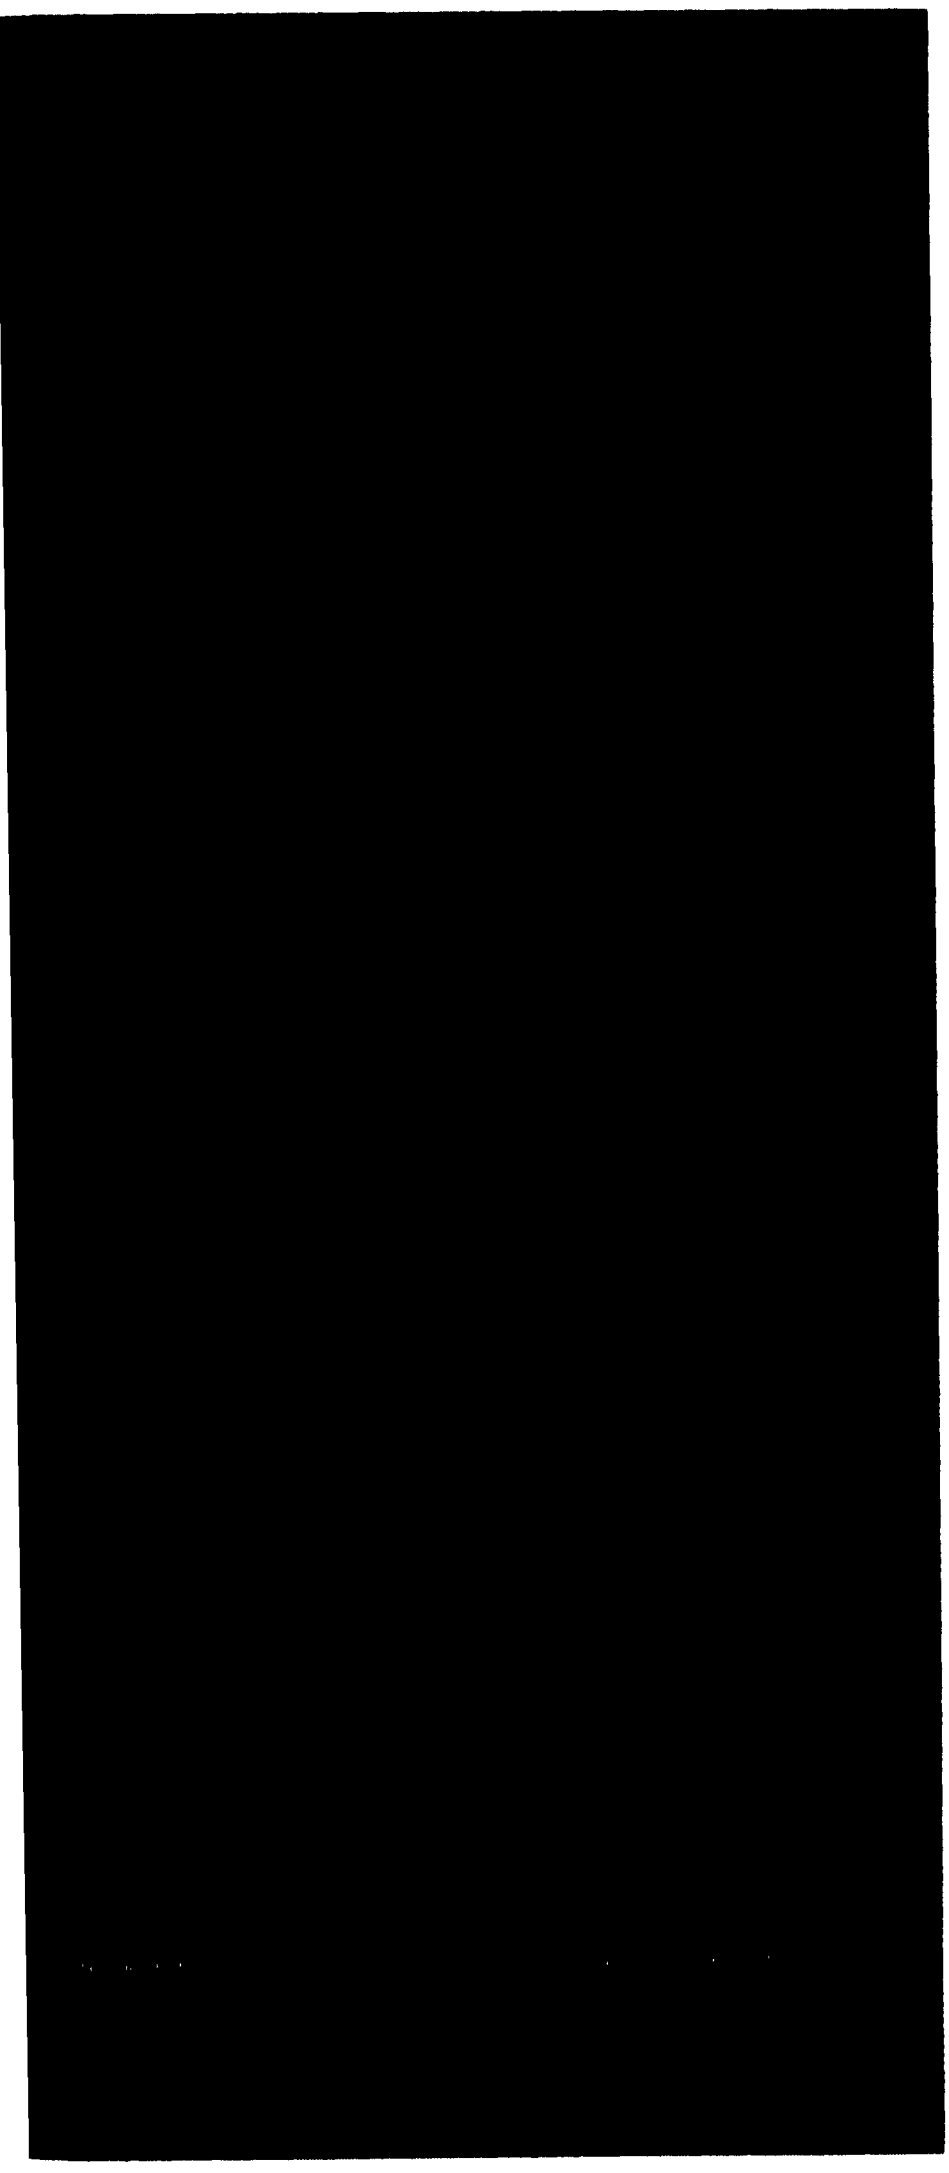
One of my classmates, Brad Longenecker, met with his Congressman, Mr. Robert Walker, to discuss the subject of Nutrient Management. Congressman Walker stated that he believes strongly "on helping the young farmer and giving aid to the 'small farmer'." Congressman Walker is a representative for Lancaster Co. PA which is largely a rural, farming based area.

Another classmate, Jill Edwards, met with Mr. Ronald Phillip from The Fertilizer Institute whose organization acts as a lobbyist. They are concerned with preserving quality and quantity of water. Mr. Phillip referred to a past study of water samples that found "Two and one half percent of rural and only one percent of city water had over the standard rate of nitrate..."

Again, these are just a few of the subjects discussed. However it can openly be declared that there is a lot of information out there just waiting to be read and debated. I, as a graduating Agribusiness major from Delaware Valley College realize how crucial it is to have good, reliable reference people in the Washington area who can assist you in finding the right contacts and information.

If you are a Pennsylvania resident and are interested in contacting your Senators for information on a subject you are concerned about, the following are their Harrisburg addresses:

Senator Arlen Specter, 1159 Fed. Building, Harrisburg, PA 17101; and Senator Harris Wofford, Fed. Square Station, P.O. Box 55, Harrisburg, PA 17108.



Brown rot is only serious if you don't know how to stop it.

You won't stop rot with ordinary fungicides. But Funginex® isn't ordinary.

It has true curative control. Even if applied to stone fruit after you spot early signs of fungal disease, Funginex actually stops disease from spreading. Stops spores from causing infection. Minimizes crop damage.

And Funginex works when resistance to other fungicides becomes a problem. So what used to be serious, isn't.

costs, management, overhead and profit margin.

Depending on the focus of the farmer, the system might include crop management, nutrient management, erosion and sedimentation control and pest management.

A number of other workshops, ranging in topic from abused men and women to recreational opportunities with the Rails to Trails program, were also held for members' benefit.

Legislators from almost every county in the state, senators and representatives, and also some federal representatives, such as George Gekas, attended the banquet and sat with constituent members to discuss, over dinner, issues of concern and to get to know each other better.

"This banquet is our way of saying thank you to the legislature for the hard work they do," said Brenda Shambaugh, Grange legislative director. "It also give our members an ideal opportunity to discuss one-on-one the problems facing them.

Shambaugh addressed the crowd also, covering the Grange's stance on several issues.

Included were such topics as nutrient management legislation which the Grange supports for the protection of farmers and consumers alike.

The Grange also continues to support a bottle bill which would create a return to the bottle deposit. The purpose is to make empties valuable and provide an initiative for their cleanup and proper disposal.

A college loan forgiveness program as an incentive for veterinary and agriculture graduates to stay in Pennsylvania to practice in rural areas, rather than leaving the state for better paying jobs.

According to Shambaugh, the Grange wants to see the passage of HB 1492, which is a rural leadership development program to help elevate the abilities of rural people to take over local leadership.

In addition to other legislative measures supported by the Grange, Shambaugh said the continued cuts of state funds to agriculture is of extreme concern. Of particular concern, she said, is the fact that no appropriations were proposed for the School of Veterinary Science at the University of Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania State Grange represents about 35,000 rural people, and was formed shortly after the Civil War as the state's first organized farm movement.

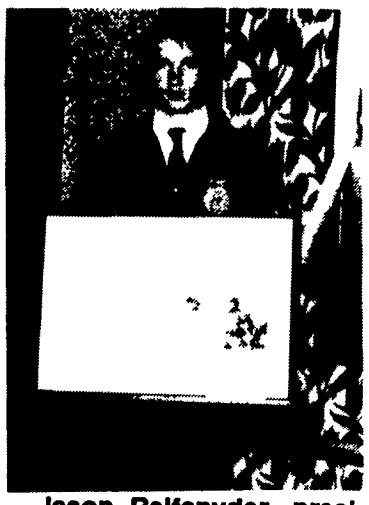
Grassland FFA Wins Conservation Award

The Grassland FFA at Garden Spot High School was recognized by the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs as winner of the prestigious John F. Laudadio Award.

The award was based upon the chapter's prolonged commitment to conservation efforts in Pennsylvania. Among the highlights of the Grassland FFA's involvement over the past 10 years:

- Envirothon Competition at the state level 1983 - 1st place.
- FFA Building Our American Communities (BOAC) competition at the state level in 1981 - 1st; 1983 - 2nd; 1984 - 2nd; 1986 - 1st; 1988 - 5th; 1990 - 1st and eastern regional national gold medal winners in 1986 and 1990.
- Involvement in Lancaster County Youth Conservation School. Since its inception, an average of 4-5 students participate as campers annually. Approximately half of the volunteer counseling staff have been made up of graduates of the Grassland FFA.



Jason Reifsnyder, president of the Grassland FFA, accepts the John F. Laudadio Award on behalf of the FFA Chapter.

Tougher Disease Laws

maintenance to protect our leading industry, which is agriculture," Clymer said. "Once we detect a problem in animals, we have to be responsive to the greater industry which is agriculture and not shy away from dealing with those animals which carry the disease."

Efforts to change the laws are in response to expressed concerns by veterinarians and industry people as to the limited ability the PDA currently has to test and condem non-typical farm animals for carrying contagious diseases.

It is also an effort to take full responsibility for protecting the state's leading industry, Clymer said.

The issue came to a head recently because of a bovine tuberculosis breakout in domestic deer and elk herds in New York late last year that apparently transmitted the disease to Holsteins housed on the same farm.

Despite a quarantine on the elk and deer herd, which were then slaughtered, the farm owner was allowed to sell at auction almost all of his dairy herd, because the cows tested negative several times for the contagious disease, and because, according to the New York agriculture and marketing agency, it has never been clearly shown that deer and elk could transmit the disease to cows.

Now New York state requires that deer must be biologically segregated from cows.

Tuberculosis has long been known to be transmissible between cows and humans.

A number of the cows sold in New York were purchased by Pennsylvanians, who last month had heir cows taken for slaughter.

Confirmation of contagious uberculosis requires the slaughter of the animal. To date, no positive esults for tuberculosis resulted.

Recently, New York shored up the authority of its agriculture and marketing commissioner by passing legislation to give the commissioner the power to test any domestic animal for tuberculosis.

Several years ago a tuberculosis outbreak in Pennsylvania resulted in the slaughter of a herd of cows in Dauphin County and other cows elsewhere. The state required many months to regain its "TB-free" status, which enables cattle marketing to occur with fewer holdups.

Dr. Max Van Buskirk Jr., VMD, director of the PDA Bureau of Animal Industry, said last month that efforts were under way to determine to what extent, if any, PDA had the authority to test and condemn non-traditional farm animals.

The proposals by Rep. Clymer are apparently as a result of those and other inquiries into the extent of Pennsylvania law.

Officials said that up until the New York problem, it was not known for certain if bovine tuberculosis was transmittable between cows and other animals, such as deer and elk.

Pennsylvania's 1913 Domestic Animal Disease Suppression Law, which gives the state the authority to prevent, control, and eradicate domestic animal diseases, does not include deer or elk, but is currently restricted to ". . . any equine animal or bovine animal, sheep, goat, pig, dog, cat, or poultry . . ."

The proposed amendment would extend that definition to include, ". . . or any wild or semi-wild animal held in captivity . . ."

Also to be amended would be the state's 1931 Diseased Animal Condemnation Law.

The definition of domestic animal would also be expanded, and it would also set a compensation limit that the state would pay for a condemned wild or semiwild animal or herd of animals.

Specifically, the intended amendment for condemnation compensation is, "The amount of compensation paid by the commonwealth for any wild or semi-wild animal in captivity and condemned by the Department of Agriculture to prevent the spread of disease shall be no more than $300 per animal or 67 percent of the appraised value of the animal, whichever is less, except that in no case shall the compensation paid by the commonwealth exceed the sum of $100,000 for any herd of animals."

Clymer said he has recently sent out a memo seeking a cosponsor for the bill, and that he seeks industry support.

"Of course, I hope this has the support of the agriculture industry and with people in Harrisburg," Clymer said. "I hope to be introducing the bills within 10 days at most, then I will work with the chairman of the House Agriculture (and Rural Affairs) Committee to move the bills over (to the Senate)."

Farmer-Legislator Says Agriculture Well Represented

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Rep. Arthur Hershey, of Chester County, is one of two farmer-legislators who sit on the 18-member bipartisan Joint Legislative Air and Water Pollution Control and Conservation Committee.

The committee, he said, is sensitive to farmer needs in making recommendations for possible legislative action to the state Legislature.

The committee was formed in 1968 under former Gov. Raymond Shafer as a research and recommendation-making agency.

In addition, the committee is charged with studying the enforcement of air and water pollution laws; to hold hearings throughout the state on related issues and complaints; study the effectiveness of restoration work conducted by various state departments with federal and state funds; study mining practices, including deep mining, strip mining, open pit mining and quarrying, the reclamation of mined-out land; and study mining laws and laws related to reclamation.

Over the years, the committee has tackled a number of significant issues, some of which resulted in new or modified environmental laws.

A good amount of its work has been conducted during the 1980s, covering topics such as flood management, the Public Utility Commission regulation of water supply systems, research for the Safe Drinking Water Act, coal reclamation, low-level radioactive waste disposal, land application of sewge sludge, protecting water quality with well construction and location standards, recycling, infrastructure (PennVEST), use of roadside springs, state parks, the Pennsylvania Oil and Gas Act, funds for endangered species, septage management and disposal, urban storm water management, etc.

Current year efforts focus on water resources management, researching the recycling and regulation of used oil and putting together its annual report.

As farmers being represented on the committee, the record has been good. Not only are two farmer-legislators on the committee, but the majority of the committee consists of legislators from rural counties from different regions in the state.

According to Hershey, with all recommendations issued by the committee, considerations for agriculture are not overlooked. Although the committee must represent all interests in the commonwealth, he said the importance of agriculture and its economic, cultural and social significance is not lost in doing research and considering goals for the state.

Especially with the recent recommendations for change in the state's treatment of its water resources, Hershey said farmers may are being looked out for — there has been more than one incidence of a residential development depriving an existing farm of safe and adequate well water. Which is legal under the current laws.

However, farmers must be as aggressive as any other group in pursuing fair treatment.

"With Pennsyvlania being big in agriculture, we we wanted to make some priorities for agriculture. Water is getting scarcer and scarcer," he said, adding that he knows two farmers who have lost well water quantity and quality to residential development, which not only deprives the farmer from his drinking supply, but also deprives the livestock from safe supplies.

"I always hold that food production will be very high in the column (of things to protect). We do have to eat," he said.

As far as water resources, he said farmers ought to start now in drafting policy and making it be known that agriculture derserves high priority for water use in Pennsylvania.

"We need to make a case for something that we just can't take for granted anymore," he said. "Not with the increase in uses — carwashes, golf courses . . ."

Started out dry

In a "normal" growing season, as long as enough rain arrives on a timely basis, the plants will survive and thrive, no matter what the heat stress conditions. But the past growing season started out dry and continued that way throughout.

"At least sometime during the summer you get a significant thunderstorm or something to give you some relief," said Hershey. "But last year we had nothing."

But the growers were prepared. They brought out the irrigation lines. In some cases, they needed only 200 to 400 feet. But a six-inch main line, drawing water from the Conoy Creek, stretched 6,000 feet. And the growers were busy moving the line all season long.

When the rotations were complete, the growers had applied about eight inches of water to all the crops — not all evenly, but the crops received enough water to keep them growing.

Irrigation necessary

The farmers agree that irrigation is absolutely necessary to growing tomatoes. Without irrigation, tomato yields drop severely, and in many cases, farmers lose money.

"Just about every year you can figure you're going to have to irrigate some," said Hershey. "But last year was the first that we had to irrigate them the whole way along. Just constant water on them."

"After a year like last year," said Frank, "you look at that because the guys that couldn't put water on, most of them lost money. There's too much risk involved not to have water available."

The growers use an overhead sprinkler system which distributes the water in a 40-foot radius. Hershey said that, when it comes to irrigating, it is hard to tell exactly what to do. Often times water is lost to evaporation. "Are you better off slopping them up once or hitting them a lot of times with a little bit?" he said. "You don't know."

Don't repeat cycle

Hershey said that this year they don't want to repeat the cycle. But if another drought occurs, they intend to use the nearby water source if necessary.

The growers were concerned about the water being drawn from the Conoy Creek throughout the season. The creek was running slowly until early spring, and now, because of the rain, "it looks as good as I've seen it in about the last three years," he said. "Fortunately, between Elizabethtown and the river, we're the only guys that are drawing out.

"There're things we should have done last year that we didn't do," said Hershey. "We didn't sidedress any nitrogen at all. But we were moving pipes, so it didn't get done. And so one field had 29 tons, and maybe we could have had 32 out of it. This year we're going to make more of an effort to make sure it gets done."

Frank said that they usually sidedress after cultivation with about 28 pounds of liquid nitrogen.

Crop saves us

Last season, by July, Hershey said, the growers knew what the corn season would be like. A drought was well on the way. So the growers put more emphasis on the tomato crop, which Hershey said was "the one thing that's going to save us."

The plants were irrigated up until harvest time. Some plants could have used even more, according to Hershey. And while adverse weather affected other nearby tomato growers, Hershey and Frank were fortunate to escape a lot of it.

And the weather reports were often conflicting, according to Hershey. When the weather report called for rain, and it didn't come, the growers decided to irrigate.

As for next season, Hershey is concerned that there be enough to replenish the stream if another drought occurs.

It's scary

"It's scary," he said. "I don't mind putting water on, but is the water going to be there?"

To help the soil retain water, Hershey and Frank follow a strict soil program that involves planting cover crops over the field (barley) and subsoiling. Because of the heavy load from the 20-ton trailers during harvest, the soil is compacted and needs to be V-ripped.

Also, Frank and Hershey soil test every two years. In the past, according to Frank, the growers also obtained nitrogen tests and recommendations from a regional agronomist. The agronomist recommended 80 pounds of nitrogen per acre. But Frank said that only 30-50 pounds of nitrogen were applied.

The growers have been watching the pH steadily to maintain it between 6.3-6.5, and applying lime when necessary. The lime applications are necessary because of the application of broiler manure, which tends to lower the pH.

The growers also apply dairy manure to the fields. To aid in disease resistance, the growers also rotate to other fields — especially to fields that have not grown tomatoes.

Controlled weeds

Last year, according to the processor reports, Hershey and Frank controlled weeds with a preplant incorporated treatment of Devrinol at three pounds per acre. Post applications of Lexone DF at 0.33 pounds per acre and Poast at 1 pint per acre were applied for broadleaf (velvetleaf in particular, according to Hershey) and grass weeds. The crop was on a 10-day spraying schedule.

Fungicides were applied (for anthracnose control), including Champ at four pints per acre, Bravo 720 at three pints per acre, and Asana XL at 6 ounces per acre. Butacide was applied at 0.75 pints per acre for Colorado potato beetle control.

Ethrel, to improve yield, was applied at three pints per acre during clear weather.

Hershey said that not all of the chemicals were used by the growers. Because of the drought, at least 25 percent of the pesticides available were not used.

Cultivate twice

Normally, the growers cultivate twice during the season. This year, Hershey said they intend to get some cultivation in.

Harvest, using about 8-10 laborers, began August 8 and lasted through September 3. Most of the harvest was completed in a 15-day period, according to Hershey.

After harvest, some of the acreage was chisel plowed. The stalks are a problem, however. Hershey said piles of the stalks were difficult to shred.

Some of the best acreage yielded as much as 29 tons per acre. Hershey said that a combination of factors contributed to a good yield.

Loose and fluffy

One field "had been in soybeans the year before, and it had cow manure," he said. "The ground would have been in perfect condition — sobyeans tend to make it really loose and fluffy."

But having good yields depends on many factors, including good transplants and loose, healthy soil.

"Tomatoes are a detail crop," he said. "It's like the cows. I mean, you can't skimp, you can't cut corners." If you do, said Hershey, "In the long run you're saying 'I'm saving a little money,' but in the long run, I don't think you're doing yourself a favor."

The tomato growers will be trying a new variety this year, OX-4. The Early Pear, a prevalent plant in the operation, is a peeler variety for canning. The LaRoche variety, according to Hershey, was his favorite because of its standability.

"Everything last year did within range," he said. Nothing stood out from the rest.

Hershey believes the award, sponsored by Penn State and Furman Foods, Northumberland, honors their work and helps them set goals. "It's the same thing with DHIA and cows," he said. Hershey said the year-end DHIA averages are published every year, which list, in order, the top milk-producing herds in the state. He looks at the award as a challenge.

"It's an encouragement," said Frank. "You always try to best yourself."

Frank said timing will dictate the success of any operation. And keeping up with the details and managing the ground and plants in the right ways are essential and mean more than awards.

"It's nice to try to be better," he said. "I'm not really out there to make awards, I'm out there to make a living."

Working to set the timing mechanism, Dale Frank makes adjustments to the six-cup carousel.

Western Cows Make More Milk

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — In 1961, for the first time, an entire state's dairy herd averaged over 10,000 pounds of milk per cow. The state was California.

Now a state has exceeded an average of 20,000 pounds per cow. That state is New Mexico. In 1961, New Mexico ranked 33rd in output per cow among the lower 48 states.

For 1991, the top nine states in output per cow are in the western U.S. Connecticut is the only non-western state to make the top ten by this measure of dairy productivity.

Pennsylvania ranks 16th, with a 1991 average output per cow of 15,106 pounds of milk. The U.S. average for all states is 14,868 pounds.

AGRICULTURE'S LEADING EDGE FFA

Water Rights: Pennsylvania Needs Much Work

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania agriculturalists can expect to eventually have to make a good case why they should get water for crops and livestock.

Also, all residents can expect to become more aware of from where their water comes, how much watershed is needed for specific communities and how much water an individual can reasonably expect to use — in wet and dry years.

One of the four essential requirements for human survival, Pennsylvania's water resources have never been addressed in any usable comprehensive or quantitative manner for planned use.

However, in light of increasing occurances of non-potable, undesirable, or unreliable tap water sources, and the lack of clear guidelines for local and state officials in managing water supplies, efforts have been underway to initiate changes in how the state's water is managed, possessed and protected.

At least that's the gist of recommendations by the state Joint Legislative Air and Water Pollution Control and Conservation Committee.

The 18-member committee, aided by a staff of four, last year held several public hearings and reviewed research in an attempt to understand the effects of the state's use of old English law (riparian law) to determine water rights.

Pennsylvania's water rights laws have been summarized as: Whomever digs the deepest well, uses the biggest pump and is furtherest upstream, has the most rights to the water.

That concept is on the way out.

The committee, comprised of a mix of legislators representing the various watersheds throughout the state, has issued a special report of its findings and recommendations for use by the state Legislature in writing new water rights law.

Those recommendations basically point to the need for water rights laws which treat the state's water sources as renewable, but limited, commonwealth property; not a commodity available on command by the biggest and richest.

Some of the problems which exist are centered on the increasing competition for water, particularly groundwater, which is almost completely unprotected from overuse and abuse.

Other potential problems, though not singled out in the report, include such things as the lack of any requirement for new housing to show that adequate, potable water supplies exist for proposed housing.

Currently, in Pennsylvania, neither local municipal leaders, nor state regulatory authorities, can prevent such things as a housing development being built without safe drinking water, or even having enough water.

But in seemingly water-rich Pennsylvania, the need for regulatory control on water — either to provide or deny — has not been widely seen as being needed.

Until now.

The committee, in its report, focused on the need for the state to create a structure of legal guidelines which people can use to ensure the adequate and safe supply of water for a variety of purposes.

Questions of which agency or authority would control water allocations in times of shortages needs to be addressed also, according to the report.

"Pennsylvania needs to strengthen its water management program," according to the report's introduction. "The committee's hearings and subsequent report indicates that this will involve complex issues and affect all the users of water in Pennsylvania.

"The recommmendations ... should provide some guidance to legislator and water managers who will be working on this essential program."

Seven major recommendations were issued by the committee to the state legislature.

• The Department of Environmental Resources should revise the State Water Plan for Pennsylvania. The department should also update the plan regularly. The new State Water Plan should guide future decisions on the management and allocation of the state's water resources.

• To properly manage the groundwater resources of Pennsylvania, legislation authorizing a permit and registration program for groundwater withdrawals should be considered by the General Assembly. The legislation should also include a water use priority system and requirements for identifying areas of the state with critical water supply problems.

• The committee believes that all agricultural interest groups should participate in the development of future water resources management legislation and programs.

• The committee supports the inclusion of a comprehensive drought management plan in any water resources management legislation. The committee also believes that all major water users in the state should be required to develop a drought management plan.

• Water conservation efforts should be an integral part of Pennsylvania's water resources management program. Water conservation efforts should include all users of water, not just the residential sector. And, the committee supports legislation that would required the use of water-efficient plumbing fixtures throughout the state.

• Groundwater and surface water in Pennsylvania should be managed and allocated as one hydrologic unit. Any future legislation or regulatory program should recognize this conjunctive use approach.

• The General Assembly should sponsor a "Water Resources Conference" to extend the discussion on water resources management and help to develop a consensus on issues. The conference would be an opportunity to discuss legislative and regulatory proposals for managing Pennsylvania's water resources.

That last recommendation has already occured, in part.

A conference (or informational meeting) was held April 8 and 9 in the state Capitol Building and was attended by almost 80 people.

Speakers included Dr. Ronald North, director of the Institute of Natural Resources, University of Georgia; George William Sherk, a lawyer from Washington D.C. well-versed on existing water rights laws.

Also speaking were Ray Jay Davis, a professor of law at Brigham Young University Law School in Utah; and Richard Ilamann, with the Center for Governmental Responsibilities, of the College of Law, University of Florida.

Panel discussions were held both days.

The first day's panel discussion focused on state water resources management programs and was conducted by panel members Robert Miller, deputy director fo the Maryland Water Resources Administration; Richard F. Weeks, deputy executive director for administration and police of the Virginia State Water Control Board; and also, Jim Japs, with the Minnesota Water Allocation Program, part of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The second panel discussion focused on water use in Pennsylvania.

Water Rights

Representing agriculture on the panel was Bill Adams, director of Natural Resources for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association. On behalf of the electric utilities was Jan Phillips, chairman of the Pennsylvania Electric Association's subcommittee on water resources.

Also on the panel were Catherine St. Hilaire, director of Regulatory Affairs for Hershey Foods Corporation; Caren Glotfelty, deputy secretary for water management, Pa. Deparment of Environmental Resources; and Robert Croker, director of water quality for Pennsylvania-American Water Company, a large commercial water supply company in the Harrisburg region.

According to Richard Fox, executive secretary of the committee, the non-Pennsylvania speakers all represented states which have detailed water rights laws.

Fox said that the recurring advice from them was to be sure to address surface and ground water as one body of water, not separately, as is done in Pennsylvania.

According to the joint committee's report, DER calculations are "that individual water use in Pennsylvania has increased tenfold since the turn of the century.

"While water is available in all parts of the state, adequate and accessible water supplies for all users may not always be available in sufficient quantities to meet local demand, especially during droughts or emergencies.

"Even without an emergency, two users may find themselves competing for the same water. Also, water withdrawals can threaten instream flows for aquatic resources and recreation."

Yet to be researched by the committee is the amount of stable instream flows which must be maintained in order for water quality to be assured.

The report hints at trends such as the fact that while Lancaster County is still the leading non-irrigated agricultural county in the nation, the use of irrigation in the county has increased significantly.

Furthermore, the drilling of wells for residential purposes is continuously increasing virtually unchecked — each well poses not only an additional drain on the limited groundwater source, but also presents another opportunity for groundwater contamination.

The committee is working on well-head design, location and effectiveness.

In its report, the committee notes that while DER has been working on groundwater quality, no work has been done to ensure groundwater quantity.

The Delaware River Basin Commission and the Susquehanna River Basin Commission require a limited amount of groundwater protection and withdrawal control within their respective watersheds.

The SRBC, however, recognized the need for more control during drought hearings last year and held hearings on proposed user fees.

According to Fox, there is a lot of work to be done before meaningful legislation will come about.

"We need to look at a program and how to fund it," he said, referring to the current financial shortages being experienced by many state agencies.

He said that a funding vehicle would probably be a permit fee, water use fee, or tax. Or a combination thereof.

Legislation for water conservation and management have been introduced for years. Currently, there are 16 water bills before the Legislature for consideration.

The need for research and effective new water rights legislation is sorely needed, according to committee member and farmer legislator Rep. Arthur Hershey, Chester County.

He said that trying to get something done is difficult, with the time taken by current economic politics.

"We have too much time spent trying to formulate a budget. Just what we have in place now is very important," he said.

As far as predicting a time table for achieving a new water rights law, Hershey said it is related to the amount of suffering people endure — specifically, how much more drought restrictions occur before people react and call on representatives to take action.

"I used to ask my dad what we were going to tomorrow, when I was a kid. And he said, 'It depends on the weather.'"

But Hershey said he was optimistic that people were starting to get the message. "I see people more appreciative of rainfall lately."

He said that getting something beneficial done with water supplies will take a lot of discussion, negotiations and compromise.

"There will have to be a tremendous amount of cooperation between states and communities within the watersheds," he said.

"It's important to protect our streams. It's important to try to maintain our water quality."

Capons Do Better With Fresh Bedding

HERBERT C. JORDAN
Associate Professor
Poultry Science
Penn State University

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Many of the 200 capon growers in Pennsylvania each year agree with industry leaders about chick bedding.

Meat bird producers in the state say new, fresh, clean, useful bedding materials are scarce or non-existent at sometime each year.

Broiler, roaster, capon, game bird and turkey producers say bedding materials are too expensive today to place 2 inches of fresh, clean bedding under each flock of baby poults or chicks.

Therefore, in the last 10 to 20 years, we have seen more re-use of old litter.

(Bedding refers to fresh clean material; litter refers to used materials which may carry pathogens).

Most people agree that cleaning and disinfecting a house for capons after every flock and starting new capons on new bedding is a valuable husbandry method.

Here are some factors to consider if new chicks are placed on old, used, and untreated litter.

• Old litter normally carries higher quantities of pollutants such as lead, cadmium and mercury than new bedding does, because each flock causes elements to build up.

• Old litter can carry live, attenuated or dead poultry disease pathogens from previous flocks. Growing two or more flocks of capons on one batch of bedding is not recommended.

• Old litter can harbor more parasites, vermin, or eggs of parasites.

• Most experts agree that all meat birds standing on bedding or litter eat some of that bedding or litter. Thus we see the diet of a bird can be affected by old contaminated litter if the bird's diet consists of 1 percent or more bedding or litter. Many capons do eat litter, so be careful. On necropsy, litter can be found present in small quantities or impacted in the crop or gizzard.

• Some species, for example turkeys, have been known to eat enough bedding or litter to cause illness or death.

Thus, we may wish to consider feeding insoluble or granite grit to birds to help the bird grind and pass bedding or litter materials. Feeding insoluble grit is essential for a healthy capon.

However, do not feed capons or any young growing bird, calcium grit. NEVER! NEVER!!

• If any pesticide or toxic litter treatment is used, it may accumulate in old litter. It should not be consumed by birds. Litter used more than once may adversely affect birds.

• In chemically testing fecal material or manure from poultry, we find many minerals or elements are concentrated more in feces than in feed. This means more parts per million (ppm) on a dry weight basis. Such elements as nickel, copper, aluminum, zinc, chromium, cadmium, and iron are more concentrated in feces coming out of the bird than in feed entering the bird's mouth. Thus, we see how capons need fresh bedding.

• Capons may rest in bedding or litter with their breast skin pressed into bedding for many hours each day. Injury to breast, skin, or a developing blister may cause the carcass to be downgraded and not sold for a profitable grade A price.

Capon producers have a terrible time maintaining 80 percent Grade A carcasses on most farms.

For these reasons it is a valuable practice to use 2- to 6-inches of fresh clean bedding to finish capons on.

Clean and disinfect the house after capons leave and start over again with 2 to 6 inches of fresh clean bedding. If you do this you are more likely to receive $1.80 pound for the ready to cook (RTC) carcass.

If farmers experiment with new bedding materials never before tried, approach it as a field test or trial.

Do not put toxic substances in as bedding. Observe birds frequently for the first 10 to 16 weeks and allow a diasnostic lab of experienced field person to help you.

When you try new bedding materials always be alert.

The scarce litter crisis needs new ideas, innovation, risk, faith and hope that new, valuable, fresh bedding sources can be found.

Bedding buyers for large commercial contract firms say bedding is scarce or not available or too expensive to use several months each year.

Treated wood products with PCB's or some other toxic chemical should not be used for poultry bedding.

Highest Average Ever For Calf Sale

FREDERICK, Md. — Bidding was brisk at this year's Mid-Atlantic Brown Swiss Calf Sale held at the Frederick Fairgrounds recently.

One of the largest crowds ever in attendance saw 29 calves average $1,243, the highest average in sale history. The quality of consignments merited good prices and calves went to the surrounding states of Pennsylvania, Virginia, and New York. One calf sold to a breeder in Alabama, and two sold to Puerto Rico.

The demand for Brown Swiss is on the rise as evidenced in this successful calf sale. In fact, nine junior calves (born March 1992) averaged $1,200.

First in the ring and topping the sale with a bid at $2,400 was a March calf from Jerry Harkness, We-Gotta Farm of Marcellus, N.Y. She sold to John and Bonnie Hess, Gettysburg. The third dam is the breed lifetime milk and protein champion.

Second high selling at $2,100 was a September calf consigned by Wayne Sliker, St. Paris, Ohio. She was backed by two (VG) dams with solid production and test. Howard and Norma Fleming, Burnt Mills Farm, Hollywood, Md. purchased the animal.

Next high selling calf, and the third animal over $2,000, was a consignment of Dwayne and Miriam Bell, Knoxville, Md., a powerful June Conductor with a strong pedigree to match. Her dam is sired by Dotson and she is the number one cow on the Supplemental Cow Performance Index List in the January 1992 Performance Summary. She sold to Ray Espenshade, Williamsport, Md.

Many calves sold to area Maryland breeders as well.

"We had a great sale and I believe there is a tremendous future for the Brown Swiss breed as indicated by the interest and support of the buyers here today," said Scott Hood, president of the Maryland-Delaware Brown Swiss Association.

Wayne Sliker sold the animals with Maryland and junior members working around the ring.

provide greater coverage is available?

Skeptics say that such a plan is risky because it has never been tried before, but in the 1930's Blue Cross and Blue Shield was basically the only health insurance company in the U.S. They negotiated with doctors and hospitals for reasonable fees and offered good coverage for their insureds.

It was only after commercial insurance companies started skimming off the low risk people by offering lower rates that the role of insurance companies began making a profit instead of serving people. A single payer system has worked in the United States before and it can work again.

Even our neighbors to the north have enjoyed the benefits of a single payer system for almost 20 years. Despite current rhetoric, Canadians overwhelmingly support their single payer plan. While we may not want to duplicate every aspect of Canada's system, surely we can take the most successful elements and blend them into a single payer system that is uniquely American.

Our leaders and politicians need to hear the voice of the people they represent. The people are tired of outrageous medical costs, limited accessibility and inadequate or unavailable insurance coverage. It is time for a change.

Robert C. Junk Jr.,
President
PA Farmers Union

Editor:

On November 22, 1992 Dairy farmers lost a golden chance to correct many of the inequities they were experiencing. This was the day the special Leahy Dairy Bill went down to defeat on a 51-47 vote.

It was my feeling that after many people had a chance to heal their wounds during the winter of 91-92 then we would see an avalanche of efforts being put forth to attack the inadequate prices being paid to area dairy farmers.

Several dairy farmers have told me, during meetings they have attended involving different organizations there is no chance of having any dairy legislation passed during 1992.

Some of the excuses rendered at these meeting seem to center around such things as -- 1. It's an election year. 2. Prices are higher than last year. 3. No one in Washington wants to do anything. 4. Dairy farmers aren't hurting that much.

After evaluating these excuses, officials of Pro Ag made two trips to Washington D.C. in an attempt to determine what was really going on, and you know, I wasn't really surprised as to what I heard.

1. Senator Leahy's staff tells me they are receiving very little pressure to do anything on dairy.

2. Senator Wofford and Senator Specter's staff told me the same as Senator Leahy's people did.

3. Two Pennsylvania state organizations had recently made trips to Washington. These trips are usually made to give their members a chance to meet with members of Congress and relate some of their key concerns to the Congressmen.

I asked the staff of the two Pennsylvania Senators the same question. How much concern was exhibited by these organizations regarding dairy. The answer was negatory.

Over and over again dairy farmers are accused of being apathetic towards their own problems. Some people say dairy farmers won't agree on anything. I'm wondering if the finger isn't being pointed in the wrong direction.

I've been on over 800 dairy farms during the last year, and believe me, these dairy farmers want some major changes.

If dairy farmers are showing any signs being apathetic, it's only because they feel their case is hopeless.

Recently I signed Mr. and Mrs. Richard Klim of Kingsley, Pa., as members of Pro Ag. During our conversation Rich said, "You know during the 70's and the early 50's, we were able to replace our equipment on a regular basis, but how much of our equipment is becoming obslete, and I don't know how we can replace it." Rich continued his conversation by saying, "Don't these people realize that if dairy farmers receive an adequate price for their milk, than the money is spent on the local level, and this plays a major roll in revitalizing our rural economy.

Pro Ag is going to support and work with the American Dairy Farmers Campaign in an effort to help unite more dairy farmers behind a unified effort to correct the dairy crisis. Obviously farmers are going to experience a late spring and all the work will be piling up on us. However we are going to start sponsoring more meetings (as many farmers are requesting) in an attempt to unite dairy farmers.

March's blend price in order #2 has been announced at $11.88 per cwt. This is an improvement over last years $10.90. However the $11.88 doesn't look so good when you realize the price in 1980 was $12.08; 1981 was $13.20; and 1982 was $13.02.

These prices indicate why Rich Kilm and many other dairy farmers are frustrated and bewildered.

When 1992 pay prices to dairy farmers are lower than prices paid 1980-81-82, and when reliable figures indicate the average cost of producing milk today is around $14.50 per cwt, then Pro Ag needs no further reasons as to why, one more time we're going to start shaking the bushes.

Why should the young take on a "Million Dollar Debt"? A 100 hour work week for a 11:88 Base Price minus 80 cents a cwt. for hauling and stop charges - milk production - co-op dues and government CCC deductions? They might better own a restaurant. Yesterday I paid 80 cents for an 8 oz. glass of milk. 100 lbs. of milk makes 200 servings at 80 cents or 160 dollars per cwt. Think about 20 cwt in a ton or 4000 servings at 80 cents with a price tag of 3,200 dollars per ton. Farmers share is 237.60 dollars minus deducts per ton, just doesn't pay the bills or replace 25 yr. old worn out equipment.

It's far too late for a study task force. You see America's Golden Goose turned silver and retired.

Dump The NDB Movement Nearing Goal

BARABOO, Wis. — An error by the USDA and a new wave of signed petitions combined to bring the "Dump the National Dairy Board Campaign" 8,000 signatures closer to the number needed to force a binding national referendum on the future of the National Dairy Board (NDB), according to a news release from the Wisconsin Family Farm Defense Fund, headquartered in Baraboo, Wis.

The movement to eliminate the National Dairy Board resulted both out of disatisfaction by producers opposed to the possible use of bovine somatotropin (BST) to stimulate cows to make more milk.

The NDB had allocated producer funds toward a BST-education program to prevent possible consumer distrust of milk produced under the influence of BST injections.

A natural milk-production hormone in the cow, additional levels of BST over a lactation can make the cow produce about 10 extra pounds of milk a day. Percentages vary, depending on the amount of milk already being produced.

In addition, additional producer disatisfaction with milk prices has prompted some producers to complain that raw milk processors and retailers should pay more to promote dairy consumption, or ensure that profits realized from the producer-funded milk promotions get back to the producer.

On April 22, eight volunteers for NDB gathered in a Madison office building and counted 10,668 signed petitions. About 3,000 of these had arrived during the previous week via tear-out petition cards in the April issue of Dairy Herd Management magazine.

Some dairy farmers in almost every state responded to the petition request.

Just as the count was being completed, a faxed letter from USDA official Richard McKee arrived, acknowledging that the previous number of 193,000 U.S. dairy farmers was inflated by 48,000.

McKee had been challenged to verify the 193,000 figure by attorney Ruth Simpson and Baraboo dairy farmer Mike O'Connell.

USDA's new official estimate is 145,000, which means that 14,500 signatures is all that is need to force a referendum on keeping the NDB.

Organizers of the movement said 73 percent of the need signatures have been collected.

With petition cards still coming in, and the recent publication of the petition in the National Farmers Union and National Farmers Organization newsletters, Dump the NDB backers said they are confident they can round up the needed 3,832 signatures.

While there is no prescribed timetable for completing the campaign, organizers said they anticipate the petitions will be submitted to the USDA this fall. That would set up a referendum in the winter.

"The response to the mail-in cards would have been even greater were it not for my mistake of listing an April 15 deadline," said O'Connell.

"Many parts for the country did not even receive the magazine until after April 15. Because of this mishap the card format may be repeated later. We want every dairy farmer to have the opportunity to participate in the petition drive."

Besides garnering 3,000-plus signatures, the petition cards helped bring a new national awareness of farmers' many-faceted opposition to the structure and agenda of the NDB.

Francis Goodman, the Wonewoc dairyman who helped finance the card in Dairy Herd Management, said, "Producers everywhere are starting to gee the NDB for what it realiy is — an organization funded solely by farmers to line the pockets of everyone except farmers."

Consumers Union Says Milk Safe

Consumers Union, publisher of Consumer Reports, spent the past year analyzing 160 samples of milk for residues of animal medications.

Based on their tests, Consumer Reports found residues in only about 2 percent of the samples.

The magazine also reported: "The few antibiotic residues we found were all within limits considered safe by the FDA."

Concurrently, FDA reported the results of a year-long (February 11, 1991-December 31, 1991), milk-quality monitoring program that analyzed 243 samples. Only one sample tested positive, with residues at 2 ppb., well below FDA's safe level of 10 ppb. The samples were taken as part of FDA's National Milk Monitoring Program.

There are several reasons why the milk supply is safer than ever. Enhancements in milk-production, industry medication-management, monitoring of milk received by processing plants, and regulatory safeguards include:

• Stronger federal regulations (effective January 1992) supported by the dairy industry, that expand the government's animal medication residue-monitoring system. Every incoming tanker of raw milk is screened for residues prior to processing. In addition, new regulations provide for unannounced on-site inspections and significantly stiffer penalties for the improper use of animal medications.

• Industry funding and support for more comprehensive, sensitive and accurate testing technologies that producers, processors and veterinarians can use to identify and prevent residues from entering the food processing plants. A Virginia Polytechnic State and University (VPI) analysis of more than 50 tests identified the correct tests to be used to identify particular medications and provided a measure of accuracy for each test. Some of these tests have been included in the newly revised regulations that govern milk safety.

• The development and promotion of the "Milk and Dairy Beef Quality Assurance Program." This program, is a 10-step grassroots educational program that provides farmers and veterinarians with guidelines to implement additional on-farm controls to reduce and better manage animal medication use.

As an industry, we will continue to strive to reduce animal-medication residues, to maintain monitoring systems at the plant, and encourage every partner of the dairy-production chain to remain dedicated to producing wholesome products.

Five To Vie For Berks Dairy Princess Title

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — There's been a lot of excitement in Berks County this week in anticipation of the Dairy Princess pageant tonight at 8 here in the Agricultural Center auditorium.

"This is first time in a few years that we've had several contestants," said Robin Phillips, one of several people helping coordinate the event, sponsored by the Berks County Dairy Farmers Association.

Last year's dairy princess, Kelly Gelsinger of Womelsdorf, was the only one to compete for the honor. She and Rachel Hartman, 6, of Hamburg and the Little Miss Dairy Princess, will turn over their crowns to new princesses after the presentations.

Moreover, seating for the pageant is sold out, said Debbie Dietrich, the 4-H extension agent.

Four contestants will vie for the Little Miss title and five for the main title.

They are as follows:

Tracey Lynn Borkey, Bernville R.D. 1, is a daughter of Franklin and Bonnie Borkey Jr. She is a senior at Hamburg Area High School and works full-time on the 400-acre family farm. Of the 60 milking Holsteins in the herd, Tracey owns three. She is active in FFA, 4-H, the Berks County Junior Holstein Association, and the Shartlesville Grange.

Sandra Gross, 16, is a daughter of David and Marilyn Gross, Hamburg R.D. 1. She attends Tulpehocken High School and wants to study child psychology when she attends college.

Currently a dairy ambassador, Sandra is involved in FFA, 4-H, the Mohrsville Church of the Bretheren choir, and the Berks County Junior Holstein Association. In addition to helping milk the 50 Holsteins in the herd on the 350-acre farm, Sandra also babysits. Twelve of the herd are hers.

Carrie Lynn Hetrick is the 16-year-old daughter of Randall and Cynthia Hetrick of Oley R.D. 2. After attending classes at Oley Valley High School, she helps on the 400-acre family farm owned by her grandfather, which milks 135 Holsteins, two of which she owns.

She is involved in FFA, New Life Bible Fellowship youth group, church choir, and the Oley Valley Youth League Softball. She is also a school library aide.

Sarah Johnson, 18, is the daughter of Gerard and Jean Johnson of Limekiln. She was graduated from Oley Valley High School last year and studies agricultural economics and rural sociology at the Pennsylvania State University. She is involved in the Dairy Science Club, the Block and Bridle Club, the Junior Jersey Cattle Club, 4-H, and she is a soccer coach for the State College area youth soccer team.

Her 150-acre family farm is home to five jerseys, two of which she owns.

Rebbecca Ann Riegel, 18, another current dairy ambassador, is the daughter of Bruce and Florence Riegel, Mohsrsville R.D. 1. A 1991 graduate of Schuylkill Valley High School, she is studying horticulture at the Pennsylvania State University.

In addition to being employed on the family farm, she is involved in the Agriculture Club, the National Honor Society, and her church youth group. Also a dairy ambassador, her family has 40 milking Holsteins on 140 acres.

Senate Ag Committee

tee, and Dale Baker, Penn State University professor of soil chemistry.

Helfrick announced that Mitchell Woodward, coordinator of the Maryland Nutrient Management Program, was directly ordered to not testify before the Pennsylvania committee by Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer.

Woodward's testimony was seen as key, according to Helfrick, because Maryland's program is voluntary and has been held up as an example of what Pennsylvania may want to consider as a template for its own nutrient management program.

Helfrick said he was upset by the last minute news and vowed that the committee would attempt to meet with Woodward later this summer and would not release, out of committee, any nutrient management proposals until the matter was resolved and the committee was given the information needed.

"It is my intention, before doing anything with this bill, to take the committee to go to Maryland and find out what Woodward has to say," Helfrick said, sharply.

Baker, in his testimony, said that after 12 consecutive years of study on nitrogen movement in Lancaster County farmland soil, he has come to the conclusion that their is a problem with nitrogren — it is currently applied with too little bulking agent, such as is provided by straw or newspaper bedding.

"The problem started with going to the liquid manure systems," he said.

According to Baker, the problem is the lack of "filth." More specifically, he said the cellulose and lignin carbon content of the soil should be increased.

He said that the addition of more cellulose and lignin carbon acts to retain of water and thus keep water-soluble nitrogen in the soil, not in the stream or groundwater. This keeps nitrogen in the area by which plants can use it, otherwise it drains off, with the rest of water, into streams and ultimately the Chesapeake Bay.

He strongly advocated that the real solution to over-nitrification of the Bay would be for farmers to start incorporated shredded newsprint with the soil and the manure.

He said that farmers should use nitrogen and "bank" it in the soil with cellulose. He said it would provide increased crop yields and dramatically retard the flow of nitrogen into the water.

Also, he said it would alleviate, even further, the amount of cellulose and lignin carbon (newsprint) going into landfills.

Maryland Farmer Joins National Dairy Board During Troubled Times

KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Frederick County, Md., farmer Harold Lenhart will bring honesty, integrity, and a working farmer's perspective with him when he joins the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board next week in Washington, according to friends and colleagues in the local farm community.

Lenhart, one of a new crop of appointees to the national promotion group, replaces Ernest Miller of Hamburg, Pa., as a representative of a region comprised of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, and New Jersey. He will attend his first meeting May 20-22 in the nation's capital.

Lenhart joins the board at a delicate time in its nine-year history. Farmers leading a "Dump the Dairy Board" drive claim they have garnered 11,000 signatures on a petition to force a referendum on the mandatory 15-cent a hundredweight checkoff that funds the board and other local and regional advertising organizations across the country.

Mike O'Connell, a Wisconsin farmer active in the drive, said he is confident it will get the 14,000-15,000 signatures needed to trigger the referendum. By law, the U.S. Department of Agriculture must conduct a referendum if requested by 10 percent or more of the commercial dairymen in the country, a number USDA now estimates at about 145,000.

O'Connell said the drive's organizers hope to submit their petition to USDA this fall and force a vote on the checkoff next winter.

Perhaps the major bone of contention involves bovine somatotropin (BST), the controversial hormone product still awaiting a federal decision on availability. The board spent about $1.3 million during the past two years distributing information from the federal Food and Drug Administration and other sources that claims that milk from cows given the hormone is safe to drink. The board's critics interpreted this effort as an improper endorsement of BST, a charge board spokesmen dispute.

Opponents also have criticized the payment of per diem fees to farmers in various official posts, claiming it leads to leaders who are out of touch with the grassroots. The National Dairy Board does not pay per diem fees to its directors, although sponsoring organizations sometimes do.

Lenhart, who was sponsored for his new post by the Maryland Farm Bureau, has held many leadership posts at the local and state level without such compensation.

The 59-year-old Lenhart is part of the third generation of his family to milk cows for a living. His brother works the home farm; Lenhart has the one next door. His three sons — two of whom are officially part of the family partnership, Len-Land Acres, as is his wife, Ruth — make up the fourth generation.

The Lenharts crop about 700 acres in the "redland" soils near Thurmont, Md. They currently milk about 220 cows, all but a few of which are registered Holsteins.

Although the family does a little merchandising, the main focus is marketing milk, according to the elder Lenhart.

The Lenharts have long been active in church, civic, and farm affairs. Lenhart currently is president of the Frederick County Farm Bureau and chairman of the state Farm Bureau's membership committee. He's a former president of the Frederick County Holstein Association and chairman of the county's Agricultural Preservation Advisory Board. As a member of Maryland Farm Bureau's dairy committee, he has been involved in recent efforts to organize a state-based milk pricing initiative.

Although he has not served as a director of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Agency, the major local promotion group, Lenhart is not a stranger to dairy promotion. He currently serves as chairman of the milk promotion committee of the Maryland Holstein Association.

Lenhart said he does not go to the Dairy Board with any particular agenda. However, coming up with new uses for dairy products and targeting the consumption of milk at meals eaten away from home are among the activities that hold the most promise for improving dairy farmers' bottom lines, he said. The lifelong farmer said he has little patience with critics of the 15-cent assessment.

"Nobody wants the 15 cents taken off," Lenhart said. "But I think (the national board members) have done an outstanding job as far as advertising. I think they've done an outstanding job of nutrition work."

There will always be critics who claim that investing in any organization is not worthwhile, according to Lenhart. Moreover, it's very difficult to prove that farmers' investment in promotion pays off in greater sales. But, he said, "If there wouldn't be a profit in advertising, the cola companies, the beer companies wouldn't be spending the millions that they're spending."

The Dairy Board does plan to spend $56.43 million on various advertising campaigns in the fiscal year that began May 1, or about 72 percent of its $78 million operating budget for fiscal 1993, according to spokesman Thelma Schoonmaker. Other planned expenditures include $10.2 million for dairy food and nutrition research, $4.5 million for public relations and education efforts and $3 million for market research.

By law, the board receives five out of every 15 cents contributed by farmers. Its actual budgets reflect a slightly higher percentage than the mandated one-third; the remainder goes to the other promotion groups, Schoonmaker said.

Lenhart will be one of 36 farmers who serves on its board of directors. The other directors representing the Middle Atlantic region are Penrose Hallowell of Pipersville, Pa. and Horace Waybright of Gettysburg, Pa.

Harold Lenhart, Maryland farmer, joins the National Dairy Promotion Board next week in Washington. Lenhart is the new director in the region comprised of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey.

Three Waybrights Are Former State FFA Officers

Editor's Note: The Pennsylvania FFA Foundation, assisted by eighteen former FFA state officers, has begun an ambitious search for former state officers - their addresses, what they are doing now, and recording their remembrances as a state officer and their thoughts today about the FFA and what it meant to them to be a state officer.

This article begins a series of the result of those searches. It is hoped that you will be stimulated to aid in this search to find all the state FFA officers elected since 1931. If you know of a former state officer living in your area please either call Mary Jo Cancelmo, Foundation Executive Director (215) 648-0674 or write to the Foundation at Calder Square, P.O. Box 10493, State College, Pa. 16805.

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — It is not hard to find, not just one state officer, but three former state officers, all within the same immediate family and all still working together in an agricultural operation down in Adams County.

Their last name is Waybright - Richard Waybright, FFA State Reporter, 1949-50, Doyle Waybright, FFA State President, 1971-72, and Bert Waybright, FFA South Central Regional Vice President, 1975-76.

The Waybrights have become synonymous with excellence in the dairy industry, not just in Pennsylvania and the United States, and in the entire world. Richard Waybright regularly consults with US Presidents and Secretaries of Agriculture regarding the state of agriculture in the United States and also does consulting work with S.A.A.R., which sets up models of agricultural enterprises in underdeveloped countries. Doyle Waybright, at this interview, had just returned from a trip to Canada in the northern US, where he was a guest speaker of Boumatic - lecturing on large herd management. Bert Waybright is an inventor par excellence, having been the creative engineer who recently designed a track harvesting system, whose parts will be produced by a German manufacturing firm and sold here in the United States by the Waybrights.

It all began back on the original Waybright farm in Gettysburg, which dates back to 1950, eight generations ago. The one hundred acre farm was a general working farm, which in the 1950s, became a three-way partnership of Dick's father. Clarence Waybright, his brother Horace, and Dick. Later, a brother-in-law was brought in to start the dairy plant. This came as a result of a 60's phaseout of poultry and hogs. In 1962 there were 100 head of dairy. In the early 70's when Doyle joined the operation, there were 375 head of cattle. Today there are 1475 cows. Bert remains the engineering and mechanical expert and Bert and Doyle share many of the financial responsibilities of running the farm. Father, Dick, meanwhile, has been elected a county commissioner in Adams County.

The FFA state officer story begins with Richard Waybright being elected State Reporter in 1949. Dick became the first national FFA officer from Pennsylvania in 1950 and recalls many stories from his tenure as national officer. He had the opportunity to visit with then US President Harry Truman in the Oval office, the day after all the terrible reviews Truman's daughter, Margaret, had received on her piano concert debut. He remembers being on a national goodwill tour in Chicago at the Grand Hotel. There his officer team was spotted by former first lady Eleanor Roosevelt, who invited them up to her suite for tea.

Attention

Flying Hooves

Through The Square

Tall And Handsome

The Budweiser team of Clydesdale horses was part of the opening weekend of celebration for the 250th anniversary of Lancaster. Last Sunday afternoon the 2,000 pound monarchs took to the street for a ride around the block through center square.

The press of people hardly left room for the handlers to work the team into harness, as delighted children and adults alike sought to get a closer look at the beautiful animals. Photos by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

CCC Loan Rates Announced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation recently announced its county loan and purchase rates for the 1992 crops of wheat, barley, oats and rye.

The county price support rates were determined in accordance with the Agricultural Act of 1949 and reflect changes in national average price support rates. Some county rates were adjusted to relect location and transportation costs.

For Pennsylvania, the price for a bushel of oats is at $1.05, rye at $1.63, and, except for Lancaster County, barley was set at $1.29 per bushel. In Lancaster, the rate for barley is $1.39.

The most variable-rate commodity in Pennsylvania is wheat.

his first train ride, where the team traveled from Washington, D.C. to Philadelphia to New York City. The team was guests of B.F. Goodrich at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel. "Mr. Goodrich sent his limo to the train station to pick us up. It was the first time some of us country bumpkins had even been to a big city, much less be driven around in a limousine. We even went to a hotel where there were men called porters who carried your bags, and room maids who mysteriously pulled down your bed covers at night.

"One night, while in New York, we were guests, along with A.W. Tenney, who was the national FFA executive secretary, in Mr. Goodrich's box to see the Broadway play, "Oklahoma". Two other people came to the box and sat down in front of us. All of us kept whispering back and forth among each other that we had seen those people before and were trying to figure out which movie stars they were. At intermission, the lights came on, focused on our box and the play director introduced those two people to the audience. They were the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. As soon as they were seated again, the Duchess turned around, looked at us and extended her hand. I'll never forget that night. And I'll never forget that the price of the box seat that night was $18.46. We thought that the amount was ridiculously high."

What's New Down On The Farm

Company For Dinner

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ORRTANNA (Adams Co.) — Hickory Bridge Farm, originally a working farm with a blacksmith shop, gristmill, barrel factory, and a tannery, has been transformed.

Now the wide wooden floor boards of the pre-Civil War barn are polyurethaned. Farm antiques are tucked in its rafters. Instead of the smell of animals and hay, the aroma of succulent dinners permeates the barn.

Instead of horses, the stable now holds tables covered with white cloths and checkered blue and white linens.

For those acquainted with Hickory Bridge Farm, it's the place to go for wonderful farmstyle dinners served in a farm-like setting. The farmhouse and cottages situated along the creek are now used for bed and breakfast guests.

Despite these changes, Hickory Bridge Farm is still a working farm where Robert Martin grows approximately 225 acres of hay and raises beef cattle.

His wife Mary Lynn manages the restaurant, gift shop, and the Bed and Breakfast, which was begun 23 years ago by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Hamlett.

"At one time," Mary Lynn said, "the area was inhabited by Delaware and Shawnee Indians who hunted and fished. Arrowheads, spears, and tomahawks have been found in the fields."

Later, the farm was part of a 5,000-acre tract known as Carrolls Delight, which was granted from the King of England to Lord Baltimore who granted it to the Carroll family from Annapolis, Maryland. The 5,000 acres were eventually divided into plantations and sold to Scottish-Irish settlers. The land was passed on and divided through the generations.

In 1977, the Hammetts purchased Hickory Bridge Farm. Although the former owners had begun serving dinners in the barn in the 1960s, the barn required major cleanup and rebuilding when the Hammetts purchased it.

Dr. Hammett is a country doctor and his wife is intrigued with researching history, which is revealed in the extensive collection of antiques displayed in both the restaurant and farmhouse.

From the beginning, the Hammett's goal has been to treat folks like guests not customers. Although 30 people are now employed, at least one family member is always on duty to greet guests and bid them farewell. All family members have a role to play in the daily business of operating the farm and restaurant.

Daughter Mary Lynn, who was a college student when her parents purchased Hickory Bridge, graduated, married Robert and the couple have two children that help in the family business tucked in the orchard-growing area of Adams County.

Mary Lynn's mother plants a garden in the front yard of the barn that is now a restaurant. The tomatoes, squash and especially her pride and joy — cantaloupes — are used in the meals served to guests. Flower beds surround the buildings and daughter Katie picks fresh flowers from them to decorate the tables. Katie also rasies a dairy heifer on the farm. Son Bert has a 4-H steer and helps wash dishes in the restaurant.

Guests register for the Bed and Breakfast in the kitchen of the farmhouse. If the morning is too cold to eat breakfast on the deck that overlooks the creek, guests eat by a crackling fire.

The restaurant, which is open evenings on Friday and Saturday and on Sunday from noon to 3 p.m., serves American Heritage foods that were favored by the German settlers of the area and taken from family recipes that have been passed down through the generations. During the week, the restaurant caters to bus groups, private parties, and luncheons.

Although the menu changes each weekend, dinner always has three entrees (one a seafood) several vegetables, stewed apples, corn fritters, salad with warm bacon dressing, homemade spiced peaches, fresh potato bread and apple butter and dessert. The meals are made with fruits and vegetables grown in the family's own garden and local farms.

When the evening sun fades, either Mary Lou's husband or father places kerosene lanterns along the walkway to the parking lot. Dr. Hammett has reconstructed several copper lamps that light the entryway.

Bed and Breakfast

In addition to the farmhouse, which has been converted into a bed and breakfast, the farm also has quaint cottages with private baths and fireplaces located along the creek. At first, the cottages were more rustic, but they are now wallpapered and fixed to sleep 14

The barn showcases a vast collection of antiques that guests admire while dining.

Nine-year-old Bert raises a 4-H steer. He also helps wash dishes in the restaurant that his parents and grandparents operate.

Guests register in the kitchen farmhouse where they receive a basket with tea, coffee, homemade cookies, and fresh fruit.

Overnight guests are delighted with the fancy soaps, fresh flowers, and turned bed covers where a chocolate kiss is placed on top of each pillow.

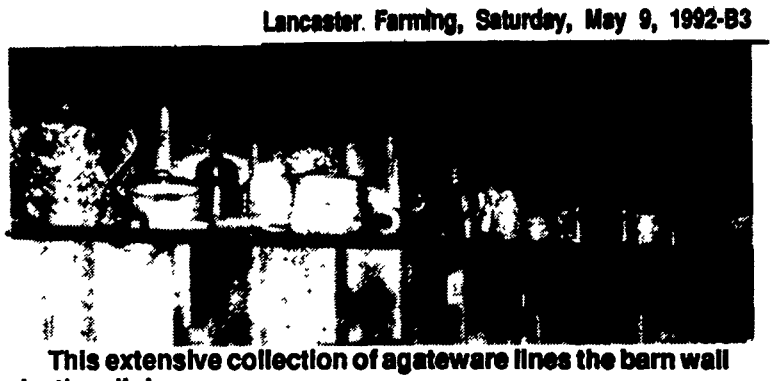
In the winter, a full country breakfast is served in the farmhouse by a crackling fire. During the summer, breakfast is served on the back porch, which overlooks the bubbling creek, rustic hickory bridge, and weeping willow trees.

In season, cantalopes and honey dews fresh from the garden are served along with their standard breakfast of fresh croissants, cereals, pancakes, with home raised blueberries, sausage and eggs, juices, tea and coffee.

"We have so many interesting guests stay with us at the farm," Mary Lynn said. "Even though we have had some very famous people, we still make guests feel at home by treating them as "real" people. The latest famous guest was the second cosmonaut from Russia.

Restaurant

When guests enter the restaurant, they are fascinated by the train that runs along the wall of the foyer. Antique sleds, a baby buggy, more than 100 lanterns, potato shovels, clover seeders, chicken catchers, and numerous other antique farm implements are arranged among the rafters. Guests admire the antiques and huge stone fireplace while sipping on hot cider or apple juice, and cheese and crackers served from antique sleigh located in the foyer.



This extensive collection of agateware lines the barn wall in the dining area.

The dining room located in the former stable has an extensive collection of granite ware, tinware, and five colors of agate displayed on shelves.

The gift shop offers Lang Graphic stationery and calendars, Goodwin weavers afghans, Castagna figurines, teddy bears, tinwork apple jewelry and limited edition prints as well as original artwork.

A country store is also located on the property. It is run by Bill and Grace Newman.

Mary Lynn said that Hickory Bridge offers special events such as the week-long craft show with 75 artisans selling crafts on consignment in November, and special dinners for Lent, Easter, New Year, Secretaries' Day and other holiday celebrations.

Reservations for Hickory Bridge are advised. If interested, call (717) 642-5261.

Here are several recipes, served at Hickory Bridge. The restaurant has a recipe booklet available by sending $3.50 to Hickory Bridge, 96 Hickory Bridge Road, Orrtanna, PA 17353.

SPICED PEACHES

1 medium-sized can peach halves

Drain juice off peaches then add to the juice:

1½ cups granulated sugar
½ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon whole cloves
1 stick cinnamon

Mix together sugar, vinegar, cloves, and cinnamon in a large saucepan. Bring mixture to a boil, and allow to cool. Add peaches and ½ cup fruit brandy, optional. Stir well but carefully. Cover and keep chilled.

OLD-FASHIONED POTATO BREAD

1 medium-sized potato, washed, pared, cut
2 tablespoons butter
2 packages dry yeast
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup milk, slightly warm
5½ to 6 cups flour

Cook potato in a small amount of water until tender, drain, and reserve liquid. Mash potato and measure ¾ cup; set aside. Add enough water to reserved liquid to make 1 cup; cool to 105-115 degrees.

Dissolve yeast in potato liquid in a large mixing bowl. Add butter and stir well. Stir in sugar, salt, milk, mashed potatoes, and 1 cup flour. Gradually stir in enough flour to make a stiff dough.

Turn dough out onto a floured surface and knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 minutes. Place in a well-oiled bowl, turning to oil the top. Cover and let rise in a warm place free from drafts for 1 hour or until doubled.

Punch down dough and divide in half; shape each into a loaf. Place in two well-greased loaf pans. Cover and let rise until doubled, about 30 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 minutes or until the loaves sound hollow when tapped.

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs

More Than $110 Million in Extra Payments

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past four years, we returned more than $110 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $31,500 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.5 million a month.

Robert B. McSparran
President

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

Technologists Develop 'Medical' Foods

CHICAGO, Il. — Consumers want, for one reason or another, new food products that are low in fat, low in salt, high in protein or high in calcium.

Yet other individuals — some 5 million of who are hospitalized or have rare diseases — must be fed specially-tailored "medical" foods, reports a new study of the 25,000-member Institute of Food Technologists (IFT).

These individuals can benefit from food technologists, assisting the development of unique life-sustaining foods in forms more desirable than sterile liquids and rehydratable powders.

For example, microorganisms could be used to remove "offending amino acids from proteins to benefit those with inborn errors of metabolism, the IFT study says.

Application of biotechnology could result in conversion of normal foods into specialized medical foods, says the IFT report. An example would be altering flour to delete gluten, an undesirable protein for some individuals.

Food technology also can improve the palatability of medical food products. It could apply to medical foods the technology used in making surimi (the imitation crabmeat now on the market, the study says.)

Technologies used to produce foods for the space program can also lend a new perspective to medical foods. Fruit "leather", a soft-moisture chewable product well accepted by young children, for example, could provide the texture and oral gratification qualities desired by patients who must consume medical foods, the IFT report says.

Such future and existing medical food products may either supplement the diet or be the sole source of nutrition for years. For example, people suffering a disorder called PKU, or phenylketonuria, cannot digest an amino acid called phenylalanine and may need medical foods from birth for a number of years.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Once a mother, always a mother.

It's in the contract — somewhere down there in the fine print. Once you learn to think like a mom, you never quite stop thinking like a mom.

Was it just coincidental that the one day a year we set aside to honor mothers occurs in the spring, when new life and new motherhood are so abundant? That's especially noticeable this year, with two new expectant mothers setting up housekeeping at a rather unpredictable place.

These are bird mothers. And they're setting up housekeeping in a tree. Imagine that.....

But the tree these two particular bird mothers have settled on is one of our ancient, towering Norway maples, the one closest to the porches, the patio, the barn path — in other words, in the middle of all our activity.

Mother Robin chose to settle in the "Y" of a big limb about 25 feet above the ground. Since the maples were thinned a few years ago, this particular limb is the lowest of any size and stability, and sort of runs parallel to, but above, the back porch.

Maybe she liked the view of the back yard. Maybe she liked the openness of the lower limb as opposed to thicker limbs and leaves at a higher level. Or maybe she liked the proximity to the fat worms which populate the flower beds and garden.

But for whatever reason, this Robin constructed her nest at a spot which is readily visible, not only from the back porch, but from the kitchen window. Which means that, when she should be doing things like fixing lunch and folding laundry, another mother will be hanging around with field glasses, monitoring progress.

Meanwhile, an even less likely mother claimed a limb a couple of "stories" higher in the maple tree maternity wing.

She's our first blue jay — that we ever know of — to nest right overhead. No doubt, one of the pairs of fencerow bluejays that have pigged out at the sunflower seeds all winter decided it would be more efficient to live directly above the feeder than it is to fly in all the time for lunch.

For days, we've watched the pair rummage through the yard for suitable sticks, twigs, bits of straw and other selected building materials. A length of baler twine I snipped into six-inch sections and unraveled under the tree quickly disappeared.

We mothers need to help each other out whenever possible.

"That means," observed the youngest Farmer, "that we'll be listening to blue jays shrieking and screaming all summer long."

Probably. Especially since this child-rearing proximity to the house stands to put these gorgeous, but noisy and combative, birds on an inevitable collision course with a couple of other mothers.

Cat-type mothers.

Mamy Gray, Mama Nosey, and Silky Black have already stashed litters of kittens somewhere around the farmstead. Mama Gray traditionally rears hers in the dairy and heifer barns - at least until she weans them and drops them off at the calf nursery for me to finish raising.

But, it appears that Mama Nosey and Silky Black both have their kittens hidden fairly close to the mother birds' maternity-wing-maple. And someday, too soon, there will likely be baby robins and fledgling jays practicing awkward landings where baby kittens toddle and tumble about.

And the feathers and fur will fly in the Mothers' Great Backyard Territorial War.

Meanwhile, this mother has a few of her own territorial concerns.

The branch on which Mother Robin neatly wove her nest hangs directly above my solar clothes dryer - the wash line. Birds being birds, let's hope this feathered mother is a responsible one, ready to tackle what is often one of the most frustrating of child-rearing jobs.

Potty training.

Mothers, fly those kids out over the garden. Please.

Mothers' Favorite Recipes

On May 10, more than 63 million mothers will celebrate Mother's Day. Cards, flowers, dinners, and presents will be given to that special person we call Mom.

It's the one special day of the year created to recognize how much mothers have given us.

Mothers are our first teachers. Even before they formally teach us cooking skills, we have developed food likes based upon the foods served by our mothers.

It's impossible to measure exactly how much influence our mothers have had on our culinary expertise, but almost everyone has a favorite recipe handed down from their mother.

Here are some our readers have shared that you will enjoy including in your menus.

CHICKEN CASSEROLE WITH BISCUITS
Mom's Favorite

½ cup chopped onions
½ cup chopped green peppers
4 tablespoons flour
½ tablespoon salt
¼ tablespoon pepper
¼ tablespoon garlic salt
2½ cups chicken broth
½ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons butter
3 cups cubed chicken
2 cups biscuit mix
⅔ cup milk
¼ cup grated cheddar cheese
½ cup ripe sliced olives
¼ teaspoon paprika

Cook onions, celery, and green pepper in butter until soft. Blend in flour, salt, pepper, and garlic salt. Add chicken broth and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture is thickened and bubbly. Combine onion mixture with chicken and pour into greased 2-quart casserole dish. Place in 425 degree oven to heat while you make the biscuits. Prepare biscuit mix using ⅔ cup milk as directed on package. Turn onto lightly dusted surface with biscuit mix and knead several times. Roll out to make an 8-inch square, sprinkle with cheese and olives.

Roll as for jelly rolls, sealing edges. Cut 8 slices, 1-inch thick. Place biscuit pinwheels on top of hot mixture in casserole. Sprinkle with paprika and bake until biscuits are lightly browned, about 25 minutes. Makes 8 biscuits. Casserole can be served alone or with a tossed salad and a cold glass of milk.

Spring Cleaning

Spring Cleaning — some people love it, some people dread it. I'm not much of a "cleaner", but I have learned the value of periodically sorting through and cleaning out my stacks of accumulated "treasures."

Have you ever noticed how your stuff tends to expand to fill the space available? Don't ask me how I managed to live in a small apartment; my belongings are already strewn throughout three bedrooms, an attic, and a basement in our new home. Thank goodness it's spring!

Spring is a great time to do some sorting, selling, and throwing. It is an especially valuable activity for seniors who may need to move to smaller living quarters in the near future.

Several weeks ago, I asked participants at a senior housing seminar to think about their many possessions. They were asked to consider which of their belongings they would keep if they had to move from their current home to one that was two-thirds smaller. They could list 14 items. Then they were challenged to think about a more drastic change. They were told to imagine moving to a care facility where they shared a room and could only take three items in addition to their clothing and grooming items.

What would you take?

Sorting through a lifetime's collection can be an overwhelming task. But it is better to do it now than to wait. Set some reasonable goals for yourslef. Could you sort through boxes in one room or in a specific section of one room?

As you clean, consider these things: Why did I save this? Is it still of value to me? Who else might value/benefit from this? If I am no longer going to keep it, is it recyclable?

Vintage clothing stores and high school/college drama departments are often grateful for old garments. Special dishes may be passed on to friends or relatives who share a special memory or interest with you. Children's artwork may be sorted through and a few choice pieces, rather than entire folders, be saved.

Family photos and films can be labeled and filed.

Collections of decades- old magazines may be recycled in some areas (if the public librarics are not interested). Rather than assuming that children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews will be interested in your attic treasures at some later date, ask them now. You may be able to sell or donate pieces of furniture that are no longer of use in your family.

Spring cleaning can be gratifying. Your home takes on a certain freshness. By sorting through your material possessions as a part of that cleaning, you can also experience some joy. Undoubtedly, your sorting will stir lots of warm memories and if you are working with others, the conversation should be lively. By intentionally choosing a special person to whom you can pass on your belongings, you can strengthen ties and guarantee a legacy across generations.

And after being faced with stacks and stacks of dusty boxes, it is very refreshing to see a few neatly packed containers and lots of floor space. This can be a very freeing process.

For seniors, it is also easier if you can control to an extent how your belongings are sorted through rather than having it done TO you. This may mean starting the process now while you can be an active participant. What a gift that will be to family members who are charged with settling your affairs after your death! It is so much better to actually see the delight in a child's eye as you pass on a cherished piece of jewelry or book than to hope that sometime in the future, your wishes would be carried out.

But spring cleaning does take time. In fact when it's tackled in manageable chunks it may actually stretch into summer and fall cleaning. But that's okay. Enjoy the sentimental journey.

ANSWER — Mrs. Wilson Starner, New Oxford, requested a recipe for Peanut Butter Custard. Thanks to Vivian Plasterer, Newburg, for sending a recipe.

Peanut Butter Pudding

⅓ cup sugar
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
⅓ cup peanut butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar, cornstarch, and salt in a saucepan, gradually add milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Boil and stir 2 minutes longer. Stir in peanut butter and vanilla. Pour into 4 individual dessert dishes; cover pudding with plastic wrap to prevent skin from forming on the top. Chill. Serve with chocolate sauce, if desired. Serves 4.

ANSWER — For the reader who requested a recipe for marshmallows, here is one from Carol Koch of Oxford, Ohio. She writes: My five-year-old son, after tasting the marshmallows, exclaimed, "These are better than you get at the store, Mom." What better praise than that?

Marshmallows

¼ cup cornstarch
⅓ cup confectioners' sugar
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
⅓ cup water
⅔ cup granulated sugar
½ cup light corn syrup
Pinch salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Sift the cornstarch and confectioners' sugar into a bowl. Lightly grease an 8x8-inch square baking pan and sprinkle 1 tablespoon of the cornstarch and sugar mixtureinto it. Tilt the pan in all directions to coat the sides as well. Leave excess in pan. Sprinkle gelatin into the water in a small saucepan and let soak for 5 minutes. Add the granulated sugar and stir over moderately low heat until the gelatin and sugar dissolve. In the large bowl of an electric mixer, combine the gelatin mixture, corn syrup, salt, and vanilla; beat for 15 minutes on high speed, until soft peaks form. Spread the fluffy mixture in the prepared pan and smooth the top. Leave for 2 hours or until set. With a wet knife, cut the mixture into quarters and loosen mixture on a baking sheet and invert the marshmallows onto it. Cut each quarter into 9 pieces and roll each one in the sugar and starch mixture. Place the marshmallows on a cake rack covered with paper towels and let them stand overnight to dry the surface slightly. Store airtight; the marshmallows will keep for one month.

CHILDREN CAN DEVELOP GOOD FOOD HABITS

You may be struggling to make certain your youngsters eat three square meals a day, but according to a recent survey of 5,000 children, kids are still gorging themselves with high-fat, low-nutrition, sugar-coated foods. They eat cupcakes, cookies, candy, and popsicles as often as they eat beans, peas and other vegetables.

While some of these less nutritious choices may be based on youngsters preference, others result from a lack of knowledge according to the survey. The responsibility for increasing what children know about food rests primarily with parents.

To teach the lesson well, parents need to teach by example. And that means regularly eating healthful meals themselves. Do as I say, not as I do does not work. Parents also need to take control of the household food selection.

If you do not want your children to eat chips and high-fat, low-nutritious foods, do not buy them. Instead, make certain there are plenty of fresh fruits, vegetables, whole-grain breads, and other easy to eat, nutritious snacks (popcorn, peanut butter, yogurt) readily available.

When your children go shopping with you, make sure they follow your guidelines. Some other things parents can do to improve their children's diets are as follows:

Never use food as a reward. That includes the chocolate bar you buy your child at the check-out counter for being good in the supermarket. Instead use verbal praise and non-food treats — such as stickers or special privileges — as a reward for good behavior.

If children skip breakfast before going to school, wake them up 5 to 10 minutes earlier. Remember most children have not had anything to eat for 10 or more hours since dinner the night before, and they need to put something in their bodies to provide them with the energy they need.

Rather than giving them a heavy, protein-rich breakfast, offer cereal, low-fat milk, juice, and fruit. Remember it is okay to be creative with breakfast. If your children do not enjoy traditional breakfast foods, maybe last night's dinner leftovers would spark their appetites.

Practice portion control. No one said that children should never eat cake or ice cream again. But when they do, encourage a smaller slice of cake or scoop of ice cream. When they eat chips or cookies, hand out several, however do not hand over the whole bag.

If you are trying to wean your youngster off a cereal which is not very nutritious, try mixing it with a healthy cereal, such as bran flakes. Make certain your family's diet limits fat intake to 30 percent or less of the total calories consumed each day. Cut back on high cholesterol foods.

Instill regular exercise habits in children, in addition to setting good eating habits. Exercise and sports activities should be a part of your families activities several times each week.

With family schedules busier than ever, you have to work even harder at making nutrition a priority. But remember it is critical for your family that you do. Children especially are developing health habits, food habits and tastes that will last a life time.

Pa. Commodities Celebrate Summmer Safety

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.)— Pennsylvania commodity organizations along with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living have joined forces to provide a "Celebrate Summer Safely" exhibit at the Pennsylvania Fair at Philadelphia Park, May 14-25, 1992. The display will inform consumers about the ways and means of safe food handling and usage.

"Our exhibit will focus on summertime picnics and barbecues," said Betsy Dupuis, communications director with the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. "We will be showing consumers that some common unsafe food handling practices at outdoor parties need to be corrected."

The exhibit, housed in the main building of the fair grounds, will tell consumers what foods must be kept refrigerated in order to secure quality. In addition, cooking and handling methods for all food products will be explained in the exhibit. The commodities are emphasizing that consumers best assurance of food quality comes through proper handling and storage. Various handling brochures and information will be available for consumers as well as popular recipe brochures.

"To further emphasize our point, we will be sponsoring a 'Super Summer Salad' contest with the Pennsylvania Fair Organization. Part of our judging process will include the contestant's use of proper storage and food handling techniques," added Dupuis. The salad contest will be held on Sunday, May 17, at 2 p.m. Entries for the contest will be accepted until May 8. For more information, call (717) 787-6903.

Students Visit Newspaper Office

Dear Children,

Were you in the building where they print the Lancaster Farming? Me, my friend and the rest of our class were. We went there on our school trip. We thought it was very interesting. I hope all of you can see it sometime.

We got to see some of the pictures that were going to be in the Lancaster Farming Newspaper.

We found out who draws Uncle Ottis, a man from out West draws him.

We saw how the paper is printed. (That was the most interesting part to us).

There was a machine that cut and folded the papers and a machine that put each section in its right place in the newspaper.

A man told us that they can make about 48,000 copies of the Lancaster Farming in about 3 hours.

They showed us big rolls of paper which were about 3 and ½ feet tall. They use the rolls of paper to make newspapers. The man told us they use about 3 rolls a week.

I wish we could have seen them make the Lancaster Farming paper. At least we got to see them make another newspaper.

The part I liked best at the Lancaster Farming is where the paper is cut and folded.

I enjoyed the tour and I enjoyed seeing the camera and the computers. I enjoyed seeing that pretty old lady typing papers. She typed pretty fast. The fish were cute too. It was fun.

The Farm

We have cows. We feed them silage, grain and hay.

We feed the calves milk, silage, grain & hay. I have to put hay down and give silage grain and I have to give the hay. We have a heifer that bucks. One time I was riding calves and fell off.

About Our Farm

I feed the bull, chickens and calves. We feed them twice a day. I give the bull silage, hay, and grain. Dad said David should give them their water. But if I tell him to, he just says you can do it. We have 19 cows. There are 11 in one row. There are 8 in the other row. Sometimes I give them hay.

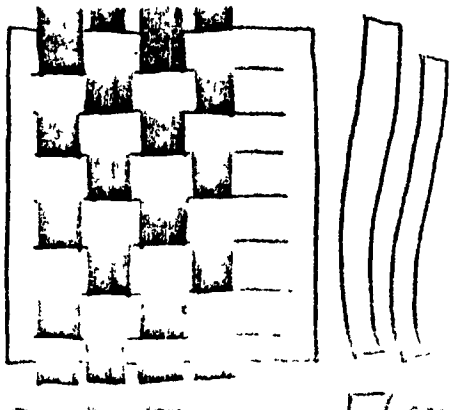
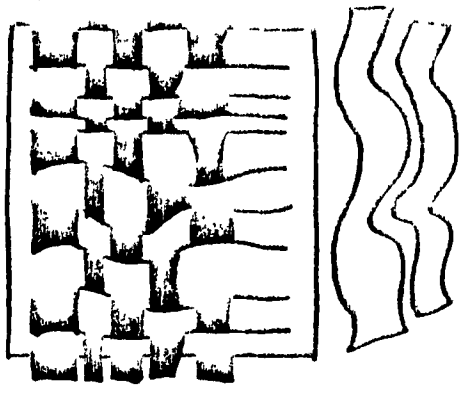
Paper Weaving





1. Fold a piece of paper in half and make cuts from the fold out to about 1" from the edge. Open the paper. This will be your "warp."
2. From another piece of paper cut long narrow strips to weave in and out of the warp.
3. To make your weaving more interesting you can vary the width of the spaces between your warp cuts, or make your warp cuts wavy. You can also vary the width and shape of the strips you weave in. Use several different colors of paper.
4. To finish, glue or staple the strips in place along the edges.

Mary Habecker Celebrates 100th Birthday

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Mary Habecker celebrates her 100th birthday on May 13.

"A lifetime of happiness," according to this centenarian whose soft white hair curls around her face.

"I feel pretty well for a 100, but I don't think I'm going to the dance tonight," she said.

At any rate, Mary would have a difficult time slipping on her dancing shoes since she is recuperating from a broken hip. Her hip was broken in March when she fell in her bedroom.

Since then, Mary is living at Landis Homes, a nursing home, until her hip mends. She plans to return to the Rohrerstown farmhouse where she and her husband reared their five children. Her husband, John, died in 1972. For the past five years, Mary's oldest daughter, Mary Lou Sheldon, whose husband also died, lives in the farmhouse.

In addition to Mary Lou, Mary has four other children: Suzanne Weist, Hershey; John David Habecker, Lancaster; Kenneth Habecker, Lancaster; and Shirley Ranck, Willow Street. Mary also had 13 grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

"I have one dog and six cats living in the farmhouse, and they are pretty near like family," Mary said.

Mary's childhood days were spent on the now famed Hans Herr homestead in Willow Street. The Hans Herr house has been restored to its original style and is open for tours. Mary thinks the house should have been allowed to remain the way it was when she lived there. She doesn't like the smaller windows that were typical of the Swiss-style houses.

The family had eight cows and 200 chickens on their farm.

"I had a very happy childhood," Mary said. "I had six cousins who were about the same age and we often got together for fun and games. One of my uncle's called us the 'six racers because of the way we used to race around.'"

Mary recalled that she had a lovely black horse on which she did a lot of horseback riding.

"His name was Dan Patch. That was also the name of a prominent race horse at that time. My horse had a white patch on his forehead just like the race horse so I named him after the race horse," Mary said.

"Dan Patch was very smart. He knew exactly where to go when I'd say, 'We're going to Uncle Frank's.'"

Mary recalled attending many house parties where they played cards. A popular summertime outing was taking a boat ride on the Susquehanna.

"We'd sing and the people in the hotel and the man who steered the boat liked it so much that he'd tell us that he would give us another ride free if we'd keep singing."

Mary said that she often attended the Fulton Opera House and the Roof Garden, which was a little theater on the top of the Lancaster Woolworth building.

She had a year of college at Millersville and taught school for a short period of time.

"Probably the biggest change I saw in 100 years is going from coal oil lights to electric," Mary said. "When my father asked the electric company to instal electric, they told him that he needed to get at least six neighbors to agree to put an electric line in. That was no problem," Mary said, "Everyone was eager for electric."

After Mary married, she and her husband moved on the Habecker farm in Rohrerstown that has been in the family for several generations. The Habeckers had cows, a bull, chickens and ducks on the 90-acre farm.

She and her husband traveled once a year to Radio City Music Hall in New York and to a New Jersey beach.

Over the years, the couple traveled to Europe, Hawaii, Bermuda, California, and other states.

"My favorite place is Switzerland," Mary said. "That's where my family came from."

Mary believes she has done everything that she wants to do in this lifetime except visit Timbuktu.

"They tell me that Timbuktu is a nice English colony where the people speak English and the food is very nice," she said. "I think it would be a fine place to go."

Mary is a member of the Society of Farm Women 10. Until this year, Mary was still opening her home for Farm Women meetings.

Although Mary's mother died when Mary was 13, her father lived until he was 96. Mary's brother who is 97 is still living.

"Except for osteoporosis and a head tremor, Mother is relatively healthy," Mary Lou said. "She doesn't have false teeth or even crowns on her teeth."

"I did not expect to live this long," Mary said. "I was seriously sick several times."

Those times were many years ago when she had pneumonia three times and when she was involved in "a bad accident."

Mary's secret for a long life: "Work hard in the open air. Work in the garden and yard."

May Day Fest Renews Medieval Customs

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

BLUE BALL (Lancaster Co.) — Visitors at the May Day Fest held at the Village Herb Shop in Blue Ball observed medieval customs of celebrating one of the world's oldest holidays.

According to Pat Dyer, manager of the Village Herb Shop, May Day was the world's oldest and most widely celebrated holidays in ancient times.

It was a time to welcome springtime and rejoice in the renewal of nature. The joy and thankfulness that people felt with the advent of spring was acted out with dancing and flower gathering.

One of the most widely practiced traditions was decorating the Maypole. The Maypole was usually a tree, a symbol of nature's fertility and vitality. The Maypole was decorated with flowers and ribbons, which two rows of costumed dancers grasped and wove in and out while moving in opposite directions.

The merry-making included an activity known as "bringing in the May." Before dawn on May Day, people would go out in the woods and gather boughs of hawthorn, also known as May or Mayblossom to decorate their homes. Women who wanted to look young bathed their faces in the morning dew.

Young girls wove leaves and flowers in their hair and went from door to door singing. They arranged May baskets of flowers to hang anonymously on neighbors' door knobs.

Suitors picked wildflowers to make nosegays for their sweethearts' May baskets.

The festivities included outdoor and indoor displays of herbs and their uses. Visitors could tour the herb gardens and buy herbs to plant in their own gardens.

Displays included instructions on how to dry and arrange herbs on notecards and pictures. Workshops instructed participants on how to arrange tussie mussies or nosegays. Nosegays or tussie-mussies date back to the days in England when flowers and herbs were carried in tight bunches and held to the nose to block out offending odors.

According to instructor Ruth Pankuch, the miniature arrangments were originally carried in medieval times. "People didn't bath and sewage ran through the streets so people pressed the nosegays against their noses when confronted with an offensive odor," she said.

Victorian nosegays included clusters of herbs recommended by physicians to revive those who felt faint or as a means of warding off diseases.

The nosegays often were used to convey a sentiment because flowers and herbs were assigned meanings. If a lady had a fight with her boyfriend, her bouquet might include the herb tansy, which meant hostility or a declaration of war against him. A rose meant love and was often used as the central flower in the nosegay.

Fresh or dried flowers and herbs can be used to make tussie mussies or nosegays. If fresh flowers are used, cut and set in water to condition them before arranging.

Directions for Nosegays

Materials:

Scissors

One central flower with a 4- to 6-inch stem

Other flowers, herbs, and leaves, as desired, with a 4- to 6-inch stem

6-inch diameter paper doily

⅜ -inch wide ribbon, enough to make desired bows and streamers.

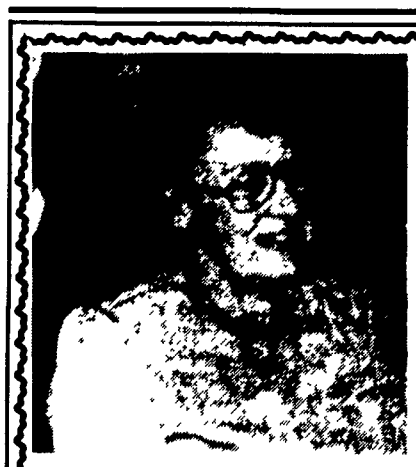
Holding a central flower in one hand, surround it with other flowers, herbs, or leaves. Chamomile, Forget-Me-Nots, Lamb's Ears, were used during the workshop. Foliage should be stripped off stems. Enlarge the bouquet until it is the size desired. Wrap stems with floral tape. Trim off stems evenly.

Cut an X in the center of the doily and insert flowers.

Tie with ribbon streamers and bows, if desired.

Helen Gruber, left, and Addie Bauman, both of Bernville, displayed their handiwork with what they call "Nature's Jewels." The women use pressed flowers, herbs, and greens to make notecards, pictures, bookmarks, and assorted gifts.

Dianne Winters, right, Strasburg, and Ruth Pankuch, New Holland, taught workshops on making tussie mussies, more commonly known as nosegay bouquets.



Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

When we traveled south to visit our children, we stopped to see Skyline Caverns in Virginia. They were only recently discovered by a scientist in 1937. These caverns have subterranean streams and cascades. They also contain calcite formations known as anthodites or cave flowers, the only ones of this type in the world.

After driving for 500 miles we stopped for the night in Bristol, Virginia. The next day we drove through the Great Smokey Mountains. Trees and plants were blooming and we stopped to take several short hikes to see waterfalls. After we drove seven miles up a mountain peak to a tower, Allen climbed to a point more than 6,000 feet elevation. These mountains are enveloped in a haze and are richly forested. There are restored historic farm buildings at one end of the park which straddles Tennessee and North Carolina.

That night we arrived in Atlanta, Georgia, were our son and daughter live with their families. The next day was Easter and 17 people gathered at one table for a meal of lamb. Having six grandchildren together at one time for an Easter egg hunt was unusual and also a noisy affair.

The next day the whole group, including a 10-month-old, two 2-year-olds, a 3-year-old, a 5-year-old, and an 11-year-old (plus we older grandparents) took a cable car up Stone Mountain. It is 825 feet high and has the faces of Davis, Lee, and Jackson carved on it — with their horses. I do not know just how we managed but we walked or ran down this mountain with the baby in a backpack. The one two-year-old girl ran the whole way down by herself over big, round rocks and was a sight to see. We older folks carefully picked our way down to a train which took us to our parking lot.

★ Gas & Diesel Engines
★ Transmissions
★ Gear Boxes And More!

Why Use IXL? It Pays!

IXL is carried to friction points in conjunction using a carrier such as oil, grease, hydraulic fluid, freon etc., initial treatment starts by treating the metal parts 3 to 5 microns deep, making the surface denser, harder and smoother; thereby, reducing friction, heat and wear up to 80%. This surface conditioning is extremely durable withstanding engine dry start up and other lube starvation problems. This results in minimum metal wear, giving maximum engine, gear and machine life. This product is bio-gradeable and non-toxic and does not contain moly, teflon or graphite.

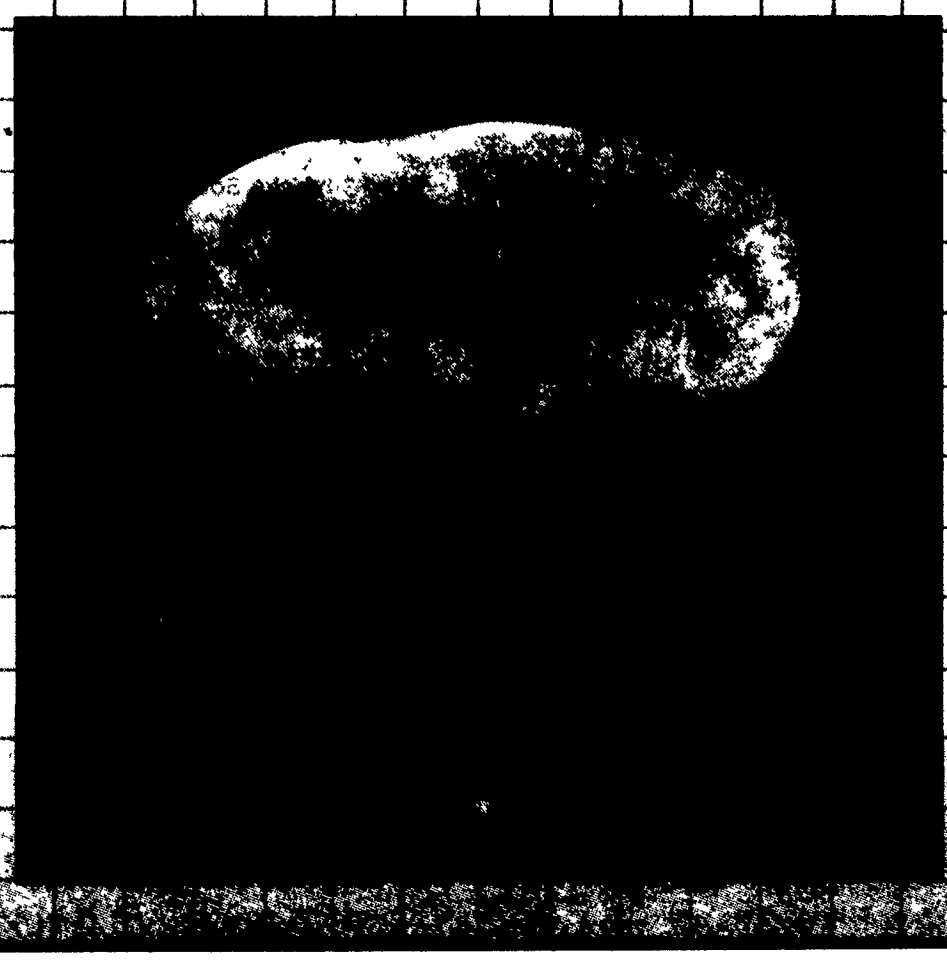
FOIL® BIOINSECTICIDE
Proven Performer / Consistent Control



Today, There is an Alternative — FOIL®
Environmentally Sound Control of Insects on Potatoes

Ecogen Inc. developed Foil® Bioinsecticide from a novel genetic combination of three strains of Bt (Bacillus thuringiensis). As insects eat Foil, they immediately stop feeding and crop destruction is halted.

Foil is the only biological insecticide that is effective against both Colorado potato beetles and European corn borers. Foil makes a powerful alternative to chemical pesticides and other Bt products.

With environmental issues a concern for all growers, Foil is indeed today's alternative.

Derived from Bt, a natural pesticide, Foil has no pre-harvest interval and does not contaminate ground water.

Devon Horse Show To Be Held

DEVON (Chester Co.)— Margie Goldstein may be tiny in size, but she'll be a big threat to the other competitors in the Jumper division at the Devon Horse Show and Country Fair.

At 5-feet, 1-inch and 105 pounds, Goldstein is so small that she seems dwarfed by some of the huge jumpers that she rides.

But Goldstein, 34, of Miami, Fla., was the American Grandprix Rider of the Year in 1989 and in 1991, and she's expected to be one of the top contenders for a spot on the team that will compete in this summer's Barcelona Olympics.

The Devon Horse Show, which runs May 22-30, is a selection site for the Olympics. Two classes at Devon, the $60,000 Grandprix of Devon Thursday evening at 8 p.m., and the $25,000 Open Jumper Stake Saturday evening, are classes in which the performance of horse and rider combinations will count towards their making that team.

The Devon Horse Show and Country Fair benefits the Bryn Mawr Hospital. Last year Devon raised $300,000 for the Hospital.

"My two Olympic prospects, Daydream and Saluut, are two very different horses," said Goldatein. "Daydream is very, very scopey, but he needs to be teated to try his best. He likes to be helped off the ground with my hands."

"Saluut tries every time," said Goldstein. "He likes to be kicked to the bottom of the fence and he doesn't want me to use my hands the way Daydream does. Saluut gives his best effort, every time he goes in the ring, he gives you everything he has."

Goldstein began riding while she was in grade school because her best friend rode.

"My family wasn't at all horsey," said Goldstein. "But, when I was in sixth grade, I started going with my best friend to the stable where she rode."

"I started to beg my parents for lessons," said Goldstein. "They could only afford one lesson a week."

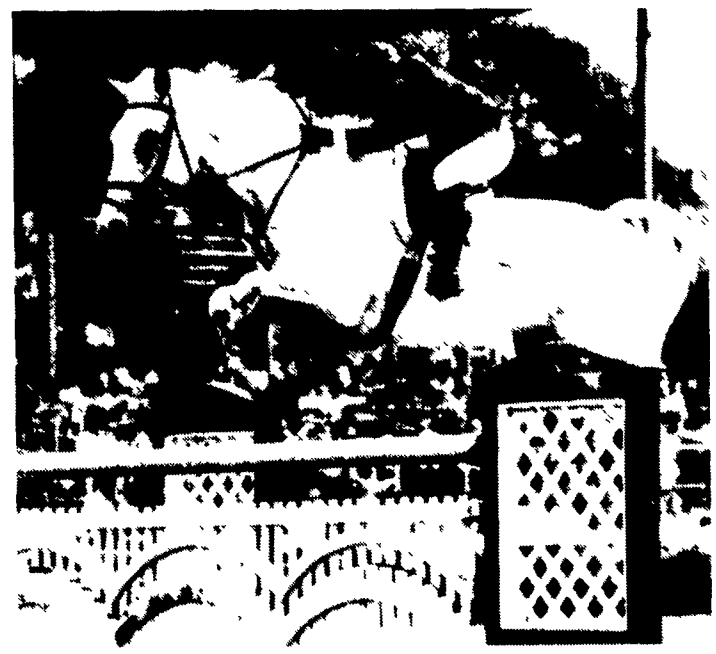
Goldstein said that she did any jobs around the barn to earn the money to have more lessons.

Goldstein started showing when she was about 9-years-old, and, by the time she was 12, she was breaking and training ponies.

Although Goldstein shows both hunters and jumpers, she says that she enjoys the jumpers more. She also trains young riders.

"I've trained a lot of pony kids," said Goldstein. "Because of my size, I can get on the ponies and school them when they need it."

General admission is $6 for adults at the gate or $5 if purchased in advance. Children under 12 are $2.50 at the gate or $2 in advance. Reserved seating is available. Tickets may be purchased in advance at the show grounds. For ticket information call (215) 688-2554 Monday, Wednesday or Friday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.



Margie Goldstein, 1991 American Grand Prix Association Leading Rider, is one of the top candidates for this year's Olympic team. The Chester County Devon Horse Show and Fair, May 22 to 30, is a selection site for choosing the team that will represent the U.S. in Barcelona.

THE JOHN DEERE AMT® 626 TRANSPORT 'MOST VERSATILE PLAYER'

Ask about our 30-DAY, NO-RISK RETURN POLICY.

The John Deere AMT® 626 Transport has been spotted on farms, ranches, golf courses, orchards, even in Saudi Arabia during Operation Desert Storm.

While it has a rugged 1000-lb. cargo capacity (with 200-lb. operator and passenger), a loaded AMT 626 Transport exerts less ground pressure than an average man walking. That means this four-wheel drive, all-terrain vehicle is gentle enough for landscape needs, yet ready to tackle mud and muck.

Add this MVP to your team. Test drive an AMT 626 Transport today.

Good Ensiling Depends On Variety Of Factors

Editor's Note: Part 2 of 3 on the silage making process is reprinted with permission from International Silo Association.

Comments Of The Ensiling Process

In looking at the normal ensiling process, there a number of related points that should be kept in mind.

1. Timeliness. Success of failure in silage making is determined largely by the events which occur during the first few days after storage. The type and degree of microbial activity, and thus the end product, are influenced by moisture, temperature, oxygen supply, and available energy.

2. Fast Filling. Proper and efficient ensiling is achieved by the quick disappearance of oxygen from the silage mass. This controls the extent of the temperature rise and encourages the anaerobic or true fermentation phase to start before there is any appreciable loss of plant energy.

3. Moisture. Ensiling a crop with a moisture content of 50-70% aids in developing a well-packed mass that minimizes both the amount of entrapped air and also the amount of subsequent air that can enter from outside.

4. Anaerobic. To obtain quality silage, anaerobic conditions should be reached as quickly as possible (within 1-3 days) to prevent undesirable microbial activity from taking place, and with it excessive heat buildup and nutritional loss. The length of time it takes to reach the end of the aerobic phase depends on such factors as silo type, fineness of chop, distribution and packing, etc. Anaerobic conditions inhibit plant respiration as well as the development of molds and yeast during the first days of storage. Yeasts and molds compete with desirable acid-producing bacteria for WSC in the plant material, resulting in high dry matter losses and lower quality silage.

5. High Organic Acid. The more rapid the development of a high organic acid concentration, the lower will be the losses that occur during fermentation (i.e. less time for spoilage organisms to operate, less growth of yeasts, etc.). The rapidity of attaining the final pH depends on temperature, moisture content, WSC concentration, protein content, and oxygen infiltration.

6. Fermentation. In the ensiling process, it is important to achieve complete fermentation — i.e. high production of organic acids (particularly lactic) and the resulting low pH level. Sufficient lactic acid will only be produced if a good supply of WSC are available in the ensiling mass.

7. Plant Sugars. The amount of WSC of plant sugars available for fermentation is governed by a number of factors such as plant species and dry matter content. WSC are readily available in corn, somewhat less in grasses, and, particularly in more northern latitudes, considerably less in legumes. At higher moisture levels, the WSC concentration is lower. One of the benefits of wilting the hay crop before ensiling is to concentrate the WSC, thereby providing more energy for lactic acid.

8. Management. There are a number of management practices which influence the sugar content of haycrop forage and thus the results of fermentation. Some of these include fertilization, plant maturity at time of cutting, length of wilting period, prevention of rain damage, and achieving rapid anaerobic conditions on ensiling.

9. Hay Silage. Alfalfa is one of the most difficult materials to ensile. In addition to being low in sugars, it is high in proteins and minerals which tend to act as buffering agents that neutralize the acids and prevent a drop in pH.

10. Clostrida. One of the undesirable acid-forming bacteria present in silage is clostridia, which forms an odorous acid called butyric. These bacteria become active as a secondary fermentation process in ensiling material where the moisture content is high (more than 70%), and where the pH is higher than normal. This type of fermentation is more prevalent in silages that are relatively low in WSC. If the moisture content is high, this dilutes the WSC and adds to the problem. The result is the clostridia bacteria become active, consuming both plant material (WSC and proteins) and the lactic acid produced by the lactobacilli. This latter action reduces the silage protection. In addition to the production of odorous such as butyric acid, clostridia fermentation produces wasteful by-products such as carbon dioxide and ammonia. The resulting silage is of lower nutritional value, not as readily accepted by the livestock, and if fed, will result in poor intake and poor performance. Clostridia activity can be reduced by lowering the moisture of the material to be ensiled and encouraging fast lactic acid buildup by following good silage-making practices.

11. High Moisture Hay Silage. Clostridial fermentation can be a particular problem with high moisture content haylage (especially legumes), where large quantities of lactic acid are required to lower the pH to a point where clostridia will be inhibited. As well, the high buffering action of legumes means that even more lactic acid is required to reduce the pH of the silage. In addition, this type of plant material may not have enough WSC available for the lactobacilli to produce sufficient lactic acid.

Soybean Farmers Applaud Retaliation

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — U.S. soybean farmers are encouraged that the U.S. government has finally announced action to retaliate against the European Community (EC) in the U.S./EC oilseeds trade dispute.

Rufus Yerxa, deputy U.S. trade representative, announced U.S. intent to withdraw concessions on the imports of goods from the EC since efforts to negotiate a commercial settlement with the EC have failed.

"This has been a long and difficult dispute in which the GATT twice ruled in favor of the U.S. position," said American Soybean Association President Gary Riedel. "We are gratified that President Bush has taken this step to uphold U.S. rights under the GATT by enforcing the 1962 trade agreement which guaranteed duty-free entry of U.S. soybeans into the EC."

In December 1987, ASA filed a Section 301 Unfair Trade Petition, charging that the EC has nullified and impaired their duty-free commitment for soybeans and soybean meal by offering lucrative subsidies to growers and processors of EC origin oilseeds at the expense of U.S. and other imported soybeans and soymeal.

Two years later, a GATT dispute panel ruled the EC program illegal. The ruling was formally adopted by the GATT council in January 1990, and EC authorities committed to implementing the report beginning with crops harvested in 1991. Although the EC finally took action late last year, their proposed plan continued to violate previous trade agreements.

As a result, the GATT panel has, for a second time, condemned the EC's oilseed program. Negotiations to settle the ongoing controversy have stalled because the EC has failed to make adequate changes in their GATT-illegal oilseeds regime.

"We continue to view the 12 European Community nations as a major market for soybeans," said United Soybean Board chairperson Sandy Ludeman, a farmer from Tracy, Minn. "This ruling will help maximize the promotional work from our national checkoff investments. We hope President Bush's strong action will get the Europeans to cut their subsidies so U.S. soybeans can compete fairly. This should be a great boost to U.S. soybean exports and to the future profits for U.S. soybean farmers."

Riedel says the proposed $1 billion level of concessions that will be withdrawn represents less than half of the damages suffered by U.S. soybean farmers as a result of lucrative subsidies to growers and processors of EC origin oilseeds.

"This in no way compensates U.S. soybean farmers for their losses in the five years since the oilseeds case was initiated or in the years since the original agreement was made in 1962," he said.

"Soybean farmers had hoped to be able to reach a successful settlement to this dispute through negotiation but the EC has, so far, been intransigent," Riedel said. "This initiative is a vital step that shows the 12-nation European Community that the United States will stand firm in enforcing GATT agreements. We urge the U.S. government to vigorously and promptly move forward."

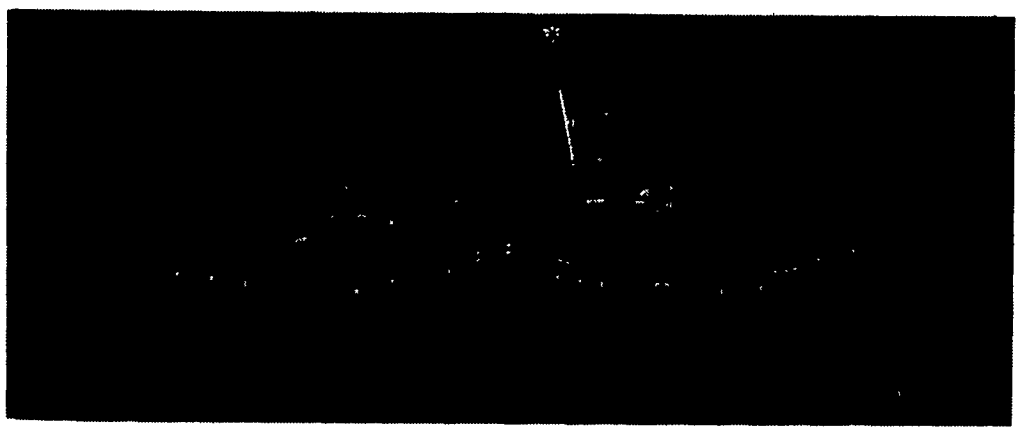
The Combi Rake of the future



Combination 10' Rake / 14' Tedders

★ With all working functions: tedding and raking.

★ For the tedding operations the rake arms are locked and the machine is tilted forwards, thus obtaining uniform spreading of the material.

★ During the raking function the rake tines are controlled in a cam track allowing the rake tines to be tilted upwards. This ensures very gentle treatment of the material.

Crops Survey Reflects Results Of Drought

FREDERICK, Md. — The Frederick County Crops Survey reflected the hot, dry weather farmers experienced last season. This could be seen not only in yield results, but also in decisions farmers had to make as they struggled to find alternative feed supplies for livestock.

The 1991 survey results showed that overall, 44 percent of the producers harvested less grain. In most instances, less corn was harvested for grain. This was because of its poor quality and yield. The corn was harvested for silage instead of being combined for grain. This helped to recover some of the production costs and meet some of the shortfall in field supplies.

More small grains were harvested in 1991 by producers. Wheat (12 percent more) and barley (10 percent more) have been very reliable crops and fit well in double crop systems. An abundance of good varieties and technological advances in fungicides and herbicides have helped to improve production.

In 1991, 91 percent of the producers reported grain yields below what they expected. In 1990, only 5 percent reported yields below what they expected.

In addition to yield reduction, hot, dry weather also affects the quality of crops. This can be seen in the overall harvested forage evaluation by producers. Forage quality was significantly lower in 1991 when compared to 1990.

As expected, 80 percent of the producers reported forage yields below what they expected, compared to the 4 percent reporting yields below what they expected in 1990.

One of the bright spots in the survey was the 31 percent increase in producers expanding their forage acres and the 5 percent increase in producers adding more permanent pastures. These are positive steps toward more sustainable types of production with lower costs.

Perennial crops such as orchardgrass, timothy, and alfalfa allow producers to recapture costs over several years. If a drought hits, everything is not lost. There is not the pressure to recapture all the costs in one season such as with an annual crop like corn.

Because most of our permanent pastures went down in the May heat wave, many livestock producers had to start feeding hay to compensate for lost yields. Overall, 23 percent more producers had to buy hay in 1991 than in 1990, and 75 percent reported buying hay due to not having enough on hand.

While purchased feeds increased on farms, the amount of on-farm produced feed decreased on 64 percent of the farms reporting.

In 1991, 41 percent of the producers reported using fewer pesticides in crop production. Almost all of them cited either economics, less pest pressure, or concern for the environment as their reason.

W. Va. Leads Way In RC&D Projects

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — West Virginia led the nation in fiscal year 1991 in the number of projects completed under Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D), the U.S. Department of Agriculture's primary rural development program.

Each RC&D area is administered by a local board or council and assisted by a coordinator from the USDA's Soil Conservation Service.

SCS State Conservationist Rollin N. Swank said West Virginia's six RC&D areas not only did more, they did them with less money than half the other states.

RC&D, which encompasses all parts of the state, completed 84 projects for recreation and tourism, community improvement, water quality, conservation education, forestry, fish and wildlife, and other purposes. New York's RC&D areas completed 74 projects for second place.

RC&D areas in West Virginia raised a substantial sum for their projects in 1991 — $545,000. However, half the states received or raised more, starting with Oklahoma at $21 million and Arizona with almost $18 million.

West Virginia was sixth in volunteer hours donated to RC&D at 2,012. First-place Utah had 5,500 volunteer hours.

Soil conservation districts, county commissions, and some cities sponsor RC&D areas and name the board members.

THINK ½ PRICE Lasts Twice As Long
1992 BARN PAINTING SPRAY & BRUSHING

To farm building owners —
Under today's farm economy it is time to reduce maintenance frustrations.

Do you remember of hearing of barn painting of approximately 75 years ago that it stayed nice longer? lasted 25 years?

Observation #1 In recent years many of these good old barn surfaces have been ruined by over-coating, poor preparation and application, lack of controlled paint placement and film thickness. The time is coming to salvage our buildings (a) Start over (b) Water blast (c) RESURFACE (d) Use solid stain to penetrate on bare spots! (e) Second coat with a breathing film thickness (f) Brush out in all directions with finest of bristles.

Really it is not as complicated as the recent changing regulations on clean milk production, or wet soils, or zoning. It is also less expensive than other barn painting experiences!

Observation #2 Colored water (latex) is less desirable for farm buildings. There is a long list of reasons for this.

Observation #3 Todays painted metal siding and roofing has a remarkably short life. Bad alloy or metal. There might be another list of reasons for this. To save it at reasonable coating cost - timing is important.

Observation #4 Today's wood selection for siding etc. is also poor. How about recycling building material?

John Deere builds two millionth lawn tractor in Horicon, Wis., plant on February 25, 1992, 29 years after starting production of homeowner mowing machines in 1963. It took 14 years to reach the half-million milestone, only seven years to pass the one million mark, and less than eight years to reach the two million mark.

Deere Builds Two Millionth Lawn Tractor

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere completed work on the company's two millionth lawn and grounds care tractor in February at its manufacturing plant in Horicon, Wis.

The two millionth tractor off the production line is a 17-hp model LX188 lawn tractor.

Production of lawn and garden tractors began at Horicon in 1963 when John Deere built 1,000 units. The first tractor was a model 110 on display at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

Fourteen years later the company reached the half-million milestone on January 12, 1977, and only seven years later it reached the one million mark when a model 318 lawn and garden tractor rolled off the assembly line on May 1, 1984. It took less than eight years to pass the two million mark.

"During the 1960s and 1970s, John Deere built a reputation for reliability and good performance with more than a million homeowners," said Ray Gregg, Jr., general manager of the Horicon Works. "In the 1980s, we extended that reputation into wide-area commercial mowers and products for golf courses and athletic fields. Now John Deere is not only the world's largest manufacturer of lawn and garden tractors, but also provides the broadest line of lawn and grounds care equipment."

SHOEMAKERSVILLE (Berks Co.) — Carol M. Mercner, director of member and public relations with Keystone Farm Credit, ACA, has received the 1991 President's Award from the Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore. Glenn L. Stevens, executive vice president of the Baltimore Bank, presented the award.

Mercner was recognized for her service to the Pennsylvania Farm Credit Marketing Committee, on which she has served for many years as secretary/treasurer and is a past chairman.

One representative from each of the four Pennsylvania Farm Credit ACAs constitutes the Committee, which coordinates the public relations and advertising activities on behalf of Farm Credit in the commonwealth.

Mercner is president of the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives (PCC), serves as secretary to the Baltimore Farm Credit district's Advertising and Public Relations Committee, and is past director and chairman of the Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H (the 4-H Foundation in Pennsylvania). Additionally, she serves on the Chester County Cooperative Extension board of directors and is a Chester County representative to the southeast region's Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations (PCCEA).

Ford New Holland Product Manager Joe Weicksel points out the function of the double bevel-gear swivel-hitch drive for disc mower-conditioners. Operators can cut tightest corners with the new drive. Universal joints are eliminated completely. Power is transmitted without interruption or chatter at any tongue angle.

Mower-Conditioner Drive Cuts Corners

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Three New Holland Discbine® mower-conditioners from Ford New Holland are available with new swivel-hitch driveline.

"Swivel-hitch has the advantage of allowing extremely tight corners," said Ford New Holland Product Manager Joe Weicksel. "This is an advantage in any field, but it is especially beneficial in irregular fields. The driver can save time at every corner without leaving uncut skippers."

The Ford New Holland swivel-hitch attaches to the tractor 3-point linkage. A PTO shaft attaches the tractor PTO directly to a right-angle bevel-gear drive.

The output shaft drives a second gear box immediately above the first. Power is transmitted directly to the machine without interruption or chattering regardless of the angle of the implement tongue and tractor drawbar.

The optional swivel-hitch driveline is factory shipped as 540 RPM on Models 411 and 412 Discbine mower-conditioners. Both are easily changed to 1,000 RPM drive. Swivel hitch for the "415" is factory supplied as a 1,000 RPM drive.

Tillage Booklet Provides Host Of Information

EXCELSIOR, Minn. — Farmers interested in having a customized residue management plan produced for their farm can have it done on a residue management (RESMAN) computer software program at Glencoe Tillage Equipment Dealers.

The dealership will enter information such as weather, current and potential tillage practices, and cropping data into the software program. The program will then provide expected results for residue coverage with various tillage practices. Farmers can use this information to design a specialized residue management plan that meets compliance requirements for their farm.

Farmers will also receive a free 12-page brochure describing the benefits of a mulch tillage program. The brochure compares mulch tillage to no-till and other practices and provides a worksheet for tallying input costs.

For more information, contact Farmhand, Inc., P.O. Box 1500, Excelsior, MN 55331, (612) 474-1941.

GIBSON CITY, Ill. — M&W Gear Company announces the addition of a new series of wheel rakes to the M&W hay product line. The series includes 4 and 5 wheel 3-point mounted, 3-point V-style, 7 and 9 wheel pull-type, and pull-type V-style models.

A pull-type rake carrier allows single rake models to be combined for use as a V-rake. Adjustments and reconfiguration can be made in minutes using no hand tools.

All models fold to a narrow transport width in minutes. For more information, contact M&W Gear Company, 1020 South Sangamon Avenue, Gibson City, IL 60936.

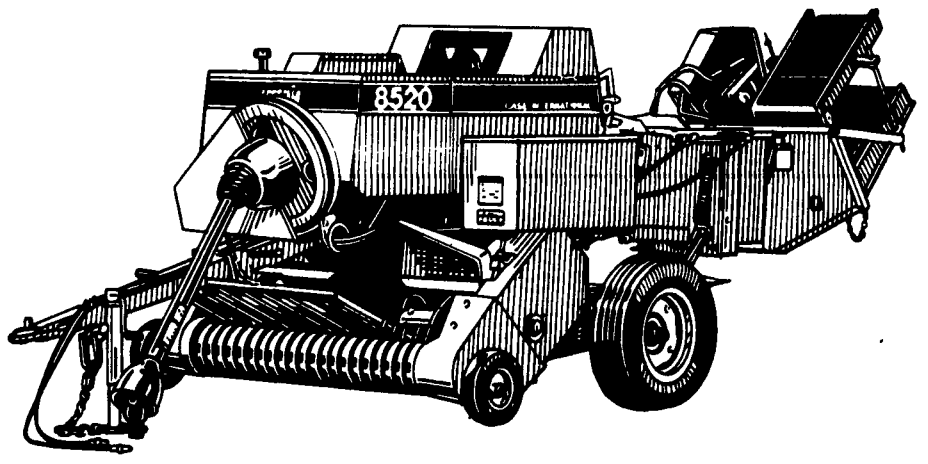
"Her" Choice



If Holsteins could talk, the conversation around the hay manger would be "Case IH Center Line Balers".

Why? More leaves per bale.

Our low profile pickup allows alfalfa hay to retain more dry leaves. We don't lift the windrow as high, saving leaves at the pickup. We also start to compress the hay before it enters the chamber to lock in leaves throughout the flake...leaves don't settle to the bottom and fall out the back of the baler to the degree of older style square balers.

More leaves means more milk, without increased overhead. Many studies show increased production of $1,000 per year over a milking herd of 100 with 2% leaf savings!

Baler Makes 4-Foot Wide Bales To 6 Feet In Diameter

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — A pair of new round balers from Ford New Holland form bales with hydraulically tensioned rolls and rubber belt bale chamber design.

The New Holland Model 650 round baler makes 4-foot wide bales up to 6 feet in diameter, while the new New Holland Model 660 baler produces 5-foot by 6-foot (maximum) diameter bales.

The 4-foot "650" bales weigh up to 1,500 pounds. Five-foot "660" bales weigh up to a ton.

Ford New Holland engineers report the combination of hydraulically tensioned belts and rolls in these new balers deliver five very dense, well-shaped bales. A steel floor roll carries the bale weight during bale forming. Front rolls pivot to create a large core cavity that forms bale cores aggressively, even in slippery, shorter material such as rotary-combined straw.

The front bale forming rolls allow the use of shorter belts to complete bale chamber enclosure. Material buildup inside the belts is minimized and belt stress is reduced to extend belt life in both dry material and round bale silage. Bales have a hard outer "shell" without excessive core density for easier handling in tub grinders or shredders.

Super sweep windrow pickups of the new balers have gauge wheels at both sides to allow pickup float and minimize damage from field obstructions.

"The out-front pickup location makes it easier for the tractor driver to see and avoid crop loss on corners," said Product Manager Jim Payton. He points out the six-bar pickup has more tines so crops, even shorter material, can be picked up with minimal loss.

With the tailgate lifted, bales discharge easily because bales are carried on the single floor roll and bale center of gravity is slightly behind the roll axis. The bale kicker kicks bales away from the baler to allow tailgates to close and latch without backing or moving forward.

Both new balers are available with factory-installed, fully automated Bale Command twine tieing or net wrapping or Autowrap tieing. Ford New Holland's Fast-Net bale wrap helps bales shed rain better where bales are stored outdoors.

New Holland Models 650 and 660 round balers from Ford New Holland form bales with a hydraulically tensioned roll and rubber belt combination. The Model 650 baler forms 4-foot wide, 6-foot diameter bales. The "660" has a wider bale chamber to produce 5-foot by 6-foot bales. Both feature "hard shell" outer density for improved weather resistance without excessive core density.

WITH YOUR VALUABLE FORAGE CROPS

Research has repeatedly shown that tower silos are the key to providing maximum utilization of home grown feeds.

Consider the facts:

1. Tower silos consistently outperform bunker silos, plastic bags and big round bales in preserving the total digestible nutrients in forage crops.
2. Tower silos give the highest level of palatability of stored forage crops–the result is greater dry matter consumption and higher production.
3. Tower silos eliminate weather as a factor since harvesting can be done at the optimum stage of development.

Residue Guide Helps Evaluate Tillage Choice

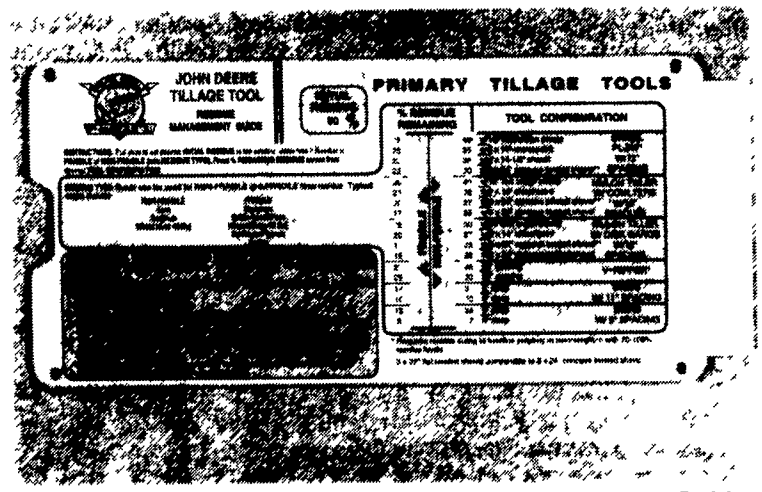
MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has introduced its tillage tool residue management guide to help farmers evaluate tillage options for achieving desired residue levels stated in their compliance plans.

Based on Deere's data, the easy-to-use guide provides remaining residue percentages for several primary and secondary tillage tool configurations in both fragile and non-fragile crop residue.

"Growers should keep in mind that this is a guide," said Carl Brechler, a member of the marketing department at John Deere's tillage equipment factory in Des Moines, Iowa. "Residue levels can vary from the percentages shown because of differences in operating speed, depth, and field conditions. Therefore, we recommend that growers measure residue levels to determine the actual remaining percentages in their fields and adjust accordingly."

Besides residue percentages, the guide also provides tips on good residue management and information on fragile and non-fragile residue, seasonal losses, and the effect of operating depth and speed on residue levels.

The tillage tool residue management guide is available from John Deere agricultural equipment dealers. Suggested list price is $1.95.



John Deere Tillage Tool Residue Management Guide provides remaining residue percentages for a variety of tillage tool configurations based on a known initial residue percentage. Primary tillage tools are listed on one side of the guide, and secondary tillage tools are on the other side. The guide is available from John Deere agricultural equipment dealers.

Ciba-Geigy Introduces Copper Fungicide

GREENSBORO, N.C. — The Environmental Protection Agency (CPA) has approved Ridomil®/Copper 70W fungicide, a prepack of metalaxyl and copper hydroxide.

It is effective against a wide range of fungal pathogens and controls diseases caused by the Phycomycete family of fungi in various fruits and vegetables.

When applied according to label instructions, Ridomil/Copper provides preventive control in potatoes of late blight and tuber rot caused by Phytophthora infestans, pink rot caused by P. crythroseptica, and Pythium leak caused by Pythium spp. In radishes, the fungicide effectively controls white rust caused by a foliar Oomycete fungus. In carrots, the foliar Ridomil/Copper 70W treatments compliment the at-planting Ridomil 2E application to provide extended control of soil-borne Pythium spp.

In addition, Ridomil/Copper controls Phytophthora fruit rot and late blight in tomatoes and Pythium spp. and Phytophthora capsici in peppers. It also controls downy mildew in spinach and cucurbit vegetables.

"Ridomil/Copper is another prepack option in our line of Ridomil products for control of foliar Oomycetes," said Dr. Bobby Bassi, phytopathology specialist for Ciba-Geigy.

Ridomil/Copper is a wettable powder packaged in a water-soluble bag.

Applications should begin at-planting or when conditions are favorable for disease (but before infection starts) and should continue until the threat of the disease is over.

Market, Technical Hurdles Face Corn Uses

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — "Corn growers can take pride in the impact of the three corn utilization conferences," said Tim Trotter, NCGA president and a corn farmer from Coal City, Ill. "But our work is far from over."

He said, "These meetings have carried on NCGA's tradition of investing in research that will broaden our markets. That's the only way we see to take the boom-or-bust cycles — and the government — out of our markets. By helping to focus the resources of the entire corn industry, from basic researcher to international processor, on the issue, we can get the most bang for our limited checkoff dollars targeted for research.

"We've had a role in the scientific advances that have moved some of these products off the lab bench and into the marketplace in record time," he said. "But all the new uses face rugged competition. And researchers tell us that we've just begun to tap the potential of corn."

The Corn Utilization Conference (CUC) IV, to be held June 24-26 at the Henry VIII Hotel and Conference Center in St. Louis, is cosponsored by NCGA and Ciba-Geigy Seed Division. It will focus the attention of more than 400 scientists on the current and future industrial uses for corn.

Several current commercial successes can be traced to the first CUC in 1987. At the first conference, prototypes of biodegradable plastics contained 6 percent cornstarch. Today several commercial articles approach a content of 100 percent cornstarch.

In 1987, the large-scale production of commodity chemicals from a corn feedstock was a theory. Today, corn-derived dextrose is used to produce specialty chemicals such as lactic, citric, and acetic acid as well as vitamins, enzymes, and pharmaceuticals.

"The sky's the limit" in the use of corn-derived dextrose for microbial fermentation, said Anthony Pometto III, professor of food science and human nutrition at Iowa State University at Ames. "We are witnessing an explosion of interest in the transformation of corn into dozens of very high value products."

However, each of those products face technical and competitive hurdles, according to Dale Gyure, group leader for bioengineering at ZeaGen, Inc. in Fort Collins, Colo.

"Corn growers are going to have to work through processes that are very complex and technically challenging to come up with new products," said Gyure. "Then they will face market resistance. The bigger the market a new product tries to penetrate, the greater the effort it will take. And the more lucrative the market, the tougher the competition. Ethanol is taking on big oil. The plastics market is huge.

"But the potential payback is there if corn growers can become the least cost reliable supplier of products that are technically superior to the competition."

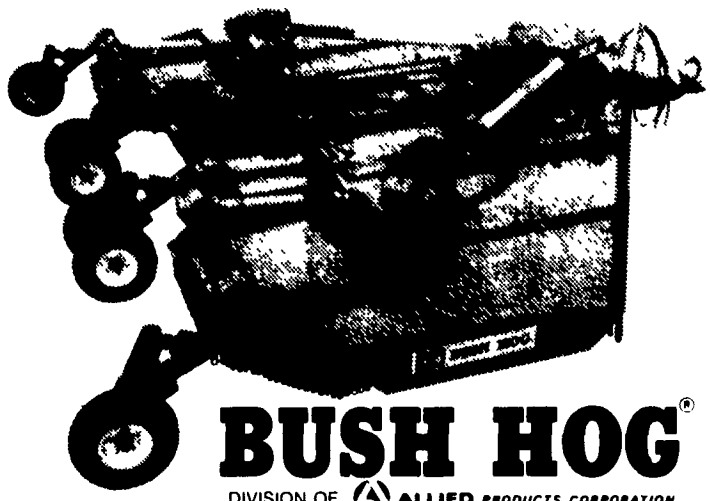
A ROTARY CUTTER FOR THE LARGEST CUTTING JOBS.



BUSH HOG®
DIVISION OF ALLIED PRODUCTS CORPORATION
Winning with quality.

Especially recommended for medium duty mowing on large acreages, Bush hog's 2620 Series Rotary Cutter gives you a full 20-foot cut... and blades overlap 6 inches to assure a clean, uniform job. Wings flex from 90° up to 22° down during operation, so work on uneven terrain is no problem. Spring-loaded axle assemblies provide shock absorption at each axle arm for added protection in rough cutting conditions.

Features include 540 or 1000 rpm heavy duty gear boxes, level lifting of center and wing units and a choice of round or straight blade holders.

STOP BEATING THE BUSHES.

One of the toughest big cutters on the market, Bush Hog's 15-foot 3615 Flex-Wing Rotary Cutter was developed for heavy duty cutting chores on rugged terrain. It cuts material up to 3 inches thick and operates from 90° up to 22° down. Spring-loaded axle assemblies and heavy duty slip clutches are standard equipment. A minimum 80 hp tractor is recommended.

Features include level lifting of center and wing units, a narrow profile tongue for better turning radius and specially designed, heavy duty gear boxes. So if you've been beating the bushes and need a really tough rotary cutter, hitch the Bush Hog 3615 to your tractor. You'll make those bushes, stalks, grass and saplings virtually disappear.

Successful AI Takes Planning

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Cattle farmers can make major improvements in herd quality through proper sire selection.

Superior sires can be used either through natural service or artificial insemination, but it's up to the cattleman to pencil out the costs of AI or versus natural service and weigh them against the benefits.

The initial benefit of using AI is that you have access to outstanding, proven bulls. Sire summaries now provide reliable genetic estimates identifying bulls with economically important traits.

Dr. John Hough, director of education and research for the American Polled Hereford Association, said, "Using top bulls will result in top replacement heifers for use within your own herd or for which there may be a good market. AI also forces you to keep good records which helps improve your replacement heifer selection and can be used to merchandise your herd."

Before incorporating AI into your breeding program, be sure cows are in good condition. A high percentage of them must be cycling normally or the AI program will not be successful.

If more than 20 percent of your cows are open at the end of the breeding season, or more than 50 percent of your calves are born after the first 40 days of calving season, examine your management before starting an AI program.

You should be especially certain of good nutrition, record keeping, and facilities that can handle AI for your herd.

A well-organized education program is critical for cattle farmers planning to use A.I, Hough said.

"You must have a good understanding of your breeding goals, adequate facilities, the right equipment, and the skills necessary to detect heat and inseminate cows," Hough said. "Working with a veterinarian is also important."

Dr. P.L. Senger of Washington State University said, "Most people who have success with AI have a good relationship with their veterinarian."

"Good heat detection is one of the single most important parts of AI because a bull isn't available to interpret a cow's heat signals," Hough said. "Detecting heat isn't hard, but is time-consuming, requires regular attention, a practiced eye, and other heat detection aids."

Successful AI programs depend on essentials that work hand in hand — good herd nutrition, good facilities, efficient handling, knowing semen quality and handling techniques, knowledge of a cow's estrus cycle, knowing how to detect heat, proper timing of insemination, a qualified technician, and good record keeping skills.

Sales Jobs For Turfgrass Grads

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — While rising inflation and population growth have led to decreased opportunities in most areas of the job marketplace, these factors have had the opposite effect on Pennsylvania's turfgrass industry.

"Industry sales representatives are capitalizing on urban sprawl — or the trend since the 1950s for traditional city dwellers to move to more rural areas to establish homes and businesses," said Dr. Thomas Watschke, Penn State professor of turfgrass science.

According to the recent Department of Agriculture's turfgrass survey, there are about two million acres of turf in Pennsylvania that require maintenance.

"A total of $1.46 billion was spent in 1989 to maintain home lawns, athletic fields, parks, campgrounds, private corporation land, and roadsides.

"Turf is a major industry," Watschke said. "We can't fill all the available jobs."

Penn State students interested in working in the turf industry are enrolled in the College of Agricultural Science's agronomy curriculum, with an emphasis in turfgrass courses. However, Watschke said that the department hopes to offer a turfgrass science major for the fall 1992 term. The new major is pending approval by Penn State's board of trustees.

Turfgrass scientists are qualified to work as consultants to civil engineering firms or major landscaping companies. "They can start their own businesses, get jobs as govemment environmentalists, or be sales representatives for lawn, farm fertilizer, or chemical companies," he said. "Throughout the industry, starting salaries in sales range from $25,000 to $30,000."

Professional salespeople in the turfgrass industry were among those attending the 1992 Westem Pennsylvania Turf Conference and Trade Show. Sponsored by Penn State and the Pennsylvania Turfgrass Council, the conference featured a series of research lectures and about 80 exhibits of new turf products and maintenance equipment. More than 1,500 turf scientists and managers from westem Pennsylvania and northern Ohio attended the event.

"I started out making about $25,000," said Jamie Heydinger, field technical representative for The Scotts Company's Medina, Ohio office. A 1987 graduate of Ohio State University's turfgrass science program, he attended the conference to deliver a lecture on the proper selection of turfgrass species and to exhibit company products at the trade show.

Heydinger is responsible for Scotts' athletic field accounts in Ohio and Pennsylvania. "There is a big emphasis on high school and college sports in this area of the country," he said. "Turf on athletic fields is under constant use. It's a challenge to keep the fields in good shape. When I visit a customer, I sample the soil first. Then together we work out a fertilizer treatment schedule to keep the field healthy year-round. I put about 40,000 miles on my company car last year travelling between customers. And when I'm not on the road, I'm on the phone."

Other turfgrass science graduates may sell maintenance equipment. "An equipment sales representative can make about $3,000 a month plus commission," said Paul Brandon, district sales manager for Ryan and Cushman Turf Equipment in Exton, Pa.

"Usually, you have to have some practical experience either working on a golf course or as a turf manager someplace else," said Brandon, who earned a plant science degree from Rutgers.

One way to gain experience is to sell landscaping supplies to golf courses, according to Colin Boyd, president of Boyd Turf Industries, New Wilmington. "A sales representative for my company would have to travel between major golf courses and would probably start out earning about $22,000 a year, plus commission," he said. "I would hire a graduate from a turfgrass science program because I know that person would be able to speak the customer's language."

1992 Pennsylvania Machinery Custom Rates

The custom rates shown are averages from voluntary reports by custom operators throughout Pennsylvania. Most of the rates are stated per acre, cwt., ton, bale, or bushel rather than per hour to reduce the variation due to machinery size. Individual rates vary because of differences in working conditions, services performed, or even the operator's eagerness to do custom work. Therefore, the average rates shown should not be considered absolute indications of fair charges.

Acreage rates are shown separately for two regions of the state, labeled "Mountain" and "Valley." The differences in rates between regions reflect differences in terrain, soils, and alternative opportunities for the labor and equipment used. Figures labeled "the state" represent the straight average of all reports used regardless of geographic location.

Custom rates are slightly higher this year. Of the 68 rates reported, 63 percent have increased, 20 percent have decreased, and the remaining 17 percent are the same as last year. The overall average is up two percent from the previous year. This percentage increase was computed by adding the rates for all jobs, regardless of basis of charge, and dividing by last year's comparable total.

Landmark Genetics Acquires Bull From Woodbine Farms

HUGHSON, Calif. — Woodbine-K Bstar EMIL-et, Reg. 2139373, a young Holstein bull bred by Woodbine Farms Inc, Airville, Pa., has been selected for sampling in the young sire proving program of Landmark Genetics.

His semen has just been released for use in herds on official DHIA test throughout the United States.

As a member of Landmark Genetics' "GO" (Genetic Opportunity) Program, EMIL is undergoing thorough testing. He has successfully passed his health tests and the goal now is to get a minimum of 50 daughters milking in 40 herds across the U.S. for a high reliability on his first proof.

Pete Blodgett, president and general manager of Landmark Genetics, said, "We've selected this youngster because of his outstanding bloodlines. EMIL is a Blackstar son, a sire noted for big, milky, deep ribbed daughters with strong ligaments and correct teat placement."

His dam is the EX 97, GMD DOM Northcroft Ella Elevation, the all time All-American aged cow with over 2,000F. She is the dam of many Very Good and Excellent daughters including Woodbine-K Valiant Eleanor, EX 93, GMD, DOM with 34,807M 4.3% 1,490F and 3.2% 1,103P. Ella's sons and grandsons have done very well in many countries.

Semen from EMIL, according to Blodgett, will be available for sampling in the "GO" Herd Program for the next 60 to 90 days.

Poultry Drive Exceeds Goal

GEORGETOWN, Del. — The Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI) 1992 fund drive surpassed its $460,000 goal with cash and pledges totalling $481,000.

That announcement was made at the recent Delmarva Poultry Booster Banquet in Salisbury, Md. by Fund Drive Chairman Larry K. Winslow.

Winslow told the banquet's nearly 2,000 guests the good news about the campaign.

"As you have done so many times, all of you have come through to help our outstanding organization continue its many programs to assist all segments of the local poultry industry," he said.

The DPI Fund Drive is the nonprofit association's method of raising money for its many programs and services. DPI's membership, close to 4,000, includes poultry growers, allied industry suppliers of products and services, Delmarva's eight poultry companies, poultry company employees, and hundreds of nonpoultry businesses on Delmarva which recognize the economic importance of the industry to the area.

The booster banquet is also the occasion at which DPI presents awards to Delmarva's outstanding poultry growers and to two individuals who have made significant contributions to the poultry industry.

Delmarva's Distinguished Citizen Award was presented to Gerald B. Truitt, Jr., Salisbury, Md. This award is given in recognition of the recipient's work on behalf of DPI, the poultry industry, and the community.

Truitt, DPI's executive director since 1987, was active with DPI as a volunteer since the early 1960s, serving on the DPI board of directors, as chairman of several committees, and as president in 1984.

Prior to his employment with DPI, Truitt was active in Delmarva's agriculture through his work in the fertilizer industry, as an agricultural banker, and his service to many agricultural groups throughout the area.

The DPI Medal of Achievement was presented to University of Delaware poultry researcher George W. (Bud) Malone. This honor is bestowed upon a public servant of an agency or to a member of an organization for outstanding achievement and service on behalf of Delmarva's poultry industry.

Malone has been employed by the University since 1975 after receiving education at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and the University of Massachusetts. He has been an active member of several DPI committees and has been a speaker at countless DPI meetings, conferences, and other programs.

His research projects have been especially important to Delmarva's growers and to the live production segment of the poultry industry. His research interests have been broiler management and waste management/utilization, including poultry manure, alternative sources of litter, dead bird disposal, ammonia, and air quality. He is the author or co-author of 36 articles and dozens of other publications.

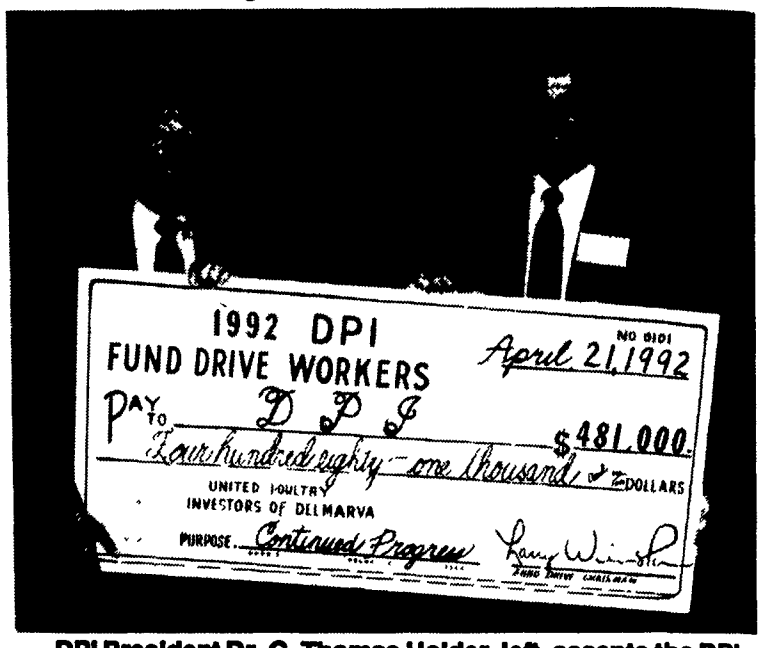
(Bud) Malone, poultry researcher, University of Delaware Research and Education Center, Georgetown, Delaware, center, was presented DPI's Medal of Achievement. DPI Executive Director Gerald B. Truitt, Jr. received DPI's Distinguished Citizen Award. Both were honored for their contributions to DPI and Delmarva's poultry industry.



DPI President Dr. G. Thomas Holder, left, accepts the DPI fund drive check from Fund Drive Chairman Larry K. Winslow at the recent Delmarva Poultry Booster Banquet in Salisbury, Md. The Fund Drive raised $481,000, exceeding the goal by 4.5 percent. The money will be used to finance DPI's many projects to help all segments of Delmarva's poultry industry.

Malone Receives DPI Award

NEWARK, Del. — George "Bud" Malone, University of Delaware associate scientist, was honored at the Delmarva Poultry Industry's annual banquet with the Medal of Achievement Award.

Malone received an engraved plaque recognizing his achievements and service in support of the Delmarva poultry industry. DPI is an affiliation of growers, integrators, allied industries and local academic institutions that supports the poultry industry on the Delmarva peninsula.

On receiving his award, Malone said, "I have to thank a lot of individuals within the university including support staff, coworkers and administrators. I'm also thankful for the support I've received from the poultry industry and growers."

A resident of Somerset County, Md., Malone has a bachelor's degree in agriculture from the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and a master's degree in animal science from the University of Massachusetts. He began his career 17 years ago as a research associate at the University of Delware's Research and Education Center in Georgetown.

The scientist's early research focused on alternative bedding materials and litter management. Waste issues of the poultry industry, including manure and carcass utilization and disposal, constitute his current research interests. Last year, Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences recognized Malone with a Superior Performance Award for his work.

An active member of DPI, Malone serves on three committees. He is a member of the Poultry Science and Applied Poultry Science associations and is associate editor for the "Poultry Science Journal".

George "Bud" Malone, University of Delaware associate scientist, received the Medal of Achievement Award from the Delmarva Poultry Industry.

Act Now To Control Gypsy Moth

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — With the coming of May, Pennsylvania property owners are bracing for this year's onslaught of gypsy moth caterpillars.

The larvae, which last year defoliated about 1.2 million acres of state woodlands, hatch in late April and early May, depending on local weather conditions. Mature gypsy moth caterpillars can be identified by the markings on their backs: five pairs of blue spots followed by six pairs of red spots.

Homeowners can reduce damage to their trees and shrubs by finding and destroying the moths' buff-colored egg masses in winter or early spring. But if you didn't take that precaution, or if your property is infested by wind-blown caterpillars from other locations, there are several ways to protect your landscape from defoliation.

Penn State entomologist Gregory Hoover said several non-chemical measures have proven effective in controlling the pest. One of the most popular methods is "banding."

To do this, in late May encircle the trunk of a tree at chest height with a 14- to 18-inch wide piece of burlap and tie a rope or cord around its middle. Fold the top half down, creating a skirt around the trunk of the tree. Near the end of each day, collect and destroy any caterpillars that have gathered under the flap.

Banding takes advantage of the caterpillars' tendency to come down from the tree during the day and seek a sheltered resting place.

"Although I wouldn't recommend this method for a property owner with hundreds of trees, it can significantly reduce defoliation on individual trees in your yard," said Hoover.

Hoover said commercially available barrier tape also can be applied to trees. Barrier tape is treated with a sticky substance that reduces the chance that a caterpillar will gain access to the crown of the tree by climbing the trunk.

Another good defense is to maintain a variety of healthy, vigorous plants that can withstand the stress of gypsy moth feeding and attract songbirds and other natural predators. "Although gypsy moths feed on about 300 varieties of trees and shrubs, they prefer oak," said Hoover. "You'll discourage gypsy moths if you maintain diversity in your landscape." Some species Hoover recommends are ash, dogwood, honeylocust, horse chestnut, mulberry, rhododendron, sycamore and yellow or tulip poplar.

Hoover said there are more than a dozen biological and chemical pesticides available for fighting the gypsy moth.

If these methods fail to provide relief from gypsy moth damage, Hoover recommends contacting your county gypsy moth coordinator about including your property in next year's aerial spray program. But don't delay — Hoover said officials likely will plan and finalize next year's spray program before the end of this summer.

For more information about the gypsy moth, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

The Economics Of Weather Cycles

Dr. Gregory D. Hanson
Associate Professor
Agricultural Economics
Penn State

Not long ago, the local newspaper in State College carried excerpts from a recent speech by the chief executive of Central Soya, a major grain company. His comments suggest a major drought lies ahead in 1992 or 1993:

"It is not a question of if, but when the effects of El Nino will be felt over the next two years. The previous pattern has been eventual drought. Grain markets will be nervous because of changing weather patterns and potential drought."

—David Swanson

Statements suggesting that an upcoming drought is "not if, but when" are not usually made by chief executive officers of large grain companies, but, in this case, the above citation is not "reckless."

Agricultural meteorologists and climatologists have begun to develop data-based models that have the promise of unraveling weather cycle secrets. Apparently, most agricultural weather specialists have long believed there are definable cycles in the weather. Data from satellite photography is now providing new answers to "how" the weather works, and massive computer models are tackling the harder "why" questions.

Why should farmers and agribusinesses be keyed into weather cycles or forecasts 18 months into the future? The main reason is that July and August droughts move agricultural commodity markets more than any other variable.

Economists model production, market price movements, inventory changes, trade policies, etc., and, in some of these models, the weather is a random variable. If it can be shown that weather phenomena, such as drought, dry phases or wet phases, occurs in identifiable cycles, then economic models will have to be redone to better incorporate nonrandom weather shocks. Economists will have to pay more attention to weather variables.

There are three well-known potential weather cycles that warrant close scrutiny at this time. Based on articles I have read from professional journals and lengthy discussions with some of the leading agricultural weather specialists, here follows a brief view of the three.

• Cyclical Warming. The earth tends to warm and then cool over 100-or-so year periods. The cool phase, such as the one that occurred between approximately 1940 and the early 1970's, is associated with stable weather patterns, which favor crop production. Since the mid-1970's, temperatures have risen nearly two degrees Fahrenheit.

This small change in temperature may be large enough to contribute to the severity of recent Midwest droughts and lower heat-stressed yield in non-drought years. The latter occurred in 1990. Hot August weather reduced Iowa corn yields as much as 10 percent, in spite of what was then thought to be adequate moisture conditions.

Droughts seem to be more frequent. Five major Midwest summer droughts occurred in the 15-year period spanning 1974-1988. Warmer average temperatures certainly could be a factor contributing to volatile weather that damages crops. It is also possible that the warm weather since the 1970's is not related to the so-called "greenhouse effect," but is strictly tied to the long warming cycles that have occurred periodically in the past, for example, between roughly 1880 and 1940.

• Maximum Gravitational Pull. Dr. Louis Thompson, Dean Emeritus, Iowa State University, has collected about 150 years of crop yield data that tends to suggest the 18.6-year lunar cycle is related to both wet and dry phases in the weather. Every 9.3 years the moon exerts maximum gravitational pull on the earth. The last such year was 1983, and an even greater lunar effect is anticipated in 1992.

However, Thompson views 1988-1993 as a dry phase, which will, in turn, be followed by a wet phase. The wet phase is actually more statistically reliable. This theory cannot be dismissed as "crackpot," given the strength of the data and the academic reputation of Dean Thompson. In fact, his theory and his name have become quite well known among corn, soybean, and wheat farmers and agri-marketing firms in the Midwest.

• El Nino. (pronounced "El Ninyo") The last five major U.S. droughts occurred in 1974, 1977, 1980, 1983, and 1988. Was it a coincidence that these all followed Pacific Warm Episodes, more commonly called El Ninos? Meteorologists, with new evidence from satellite photography, now say it was not coincidence, but "cause and effect." In fact, some studies suggest that no major U.S. drought has occurred without a preceding El Nino since the 1930s. In January of this year, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce, confirmed that a new El Nino has developed.

The El Nino is the largest weather phenomenon, other than the changing of the seasons, on earth. It reportedly now covers 20 percent of the earth's surface. It is also the only large weather phenomenon that starts in the southern hemisphere and crosses the equator into the northern hemisphere. The heavy gulf coast rains that provide an early sign of the El Nino in the U.S. arrived on schedule this winter.

Switch Between Conventional, No-Till With Planter

KALIDA, Ohio — The Unverferth Culti-Planter II from Unverferth is available with a no-till option for end wheel drills and drawn planters.

The Culti-Planter II no-till option features wavy coulter blades which are located directly in front of drill openers for superior tracking and residue penetration. Sizes and spacings are available to fit most drills and planters. Straight or fluted coulters are optional.

Unverferth's direct down pressure linkage system allows the operator to change coulter depth on-the-go without affecting the drill settings. Standard depth gauge allows operator to monitor coulter depth and setting.

The No-Till Culti-Planter II is available as a complete unit or can be installed as an option on any Culti-Planter II unit with no modification.

For further information contact Unverferth Manufacturing Co., Inc., P.O. Box 357, Kalida, OH 45853, (800) 322-6301.

If The El Nino is particularly strong, it would cause a Midwest drought in 1992. Moderate strength El Ninos usually lead to Midwest drought the following year, or, in this case, 1993. The high correlation between major U.S. droughts and the El Nino probably is the reason the grain company CEO, cited at the beginning of this article, is now nervous about the potential for drought.

Convergence of Facts

The "experts" are now more nervous about drought because all three factors, global warming, maximum gravitational pull, and the El Nino, could contribute to a severe drought or, possibly, an extended two-year drought. If that were to happen, world-wide food grain and feed grain reserves would not be adequate to affect major drought-reduced yields with surplus stocks.

Wheat stocks in 1992 are the lowest since 1974, which, coincidentally, was the last "bottom" of the 18.6-year lunar cycle. Corn stocks have fallen about 83 percent since 1987. Further, the El Nino affects world-wide crop production patterns, usually for a two-year period.

The U.S., and other nations as well, could face production shortfalls in 1992-93. Global warming and the 18.6-year lunar cycle also could lower the production of the U.S. and other nations.

Farm Management Implications

The first economics rule is to take the theories cited above with a "grain of salt" until they are well-proven. A prudent approach is to recognize there are apparent correlations, or relationships, between the three weather phenomena cited above and drought conditions. How important these factors are is a judgment call.

Prudence, however, probably suggests that farmers try to lock in shares of their feed supplies earlier than usual. We have suggested since last harvest season that the best way is to acquire hay and silage from neighbors at harvest. Livestock producers who are short of feed may also want to lock in prices with their feed dealers or Future's Market contracts that "hedge" feed needs. However, Future's Market contracts or options require market plans, fortitude, and, often times, financial reserves for margin calls in order to be successful.

If crop producers forward-sell, they might not want to do so to their usual extents. The current trend for crop commodity prices is rising, and prices could reach far higher than typical levels sometime during the next 18 months, if drought does occur.

The bottom line is to try to be flexible and develop a plan for a 1992-1993 period that may be characterized by dry conditions and low carryover stocks.

Of course, drought could affect the Midwest and not Pennsylvania. Drought could occur in other nations, such as Russia and Brazil, and not in the U.S., but, given the cheap dollar that tends to promote grain exports, low carryover stocks, and widespread concern about 1992-1993 weather, it is prudent to at least think about what a severe drought would imply for Pennsylvania farmers.

Draft Horse Clinic Set

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — The Pennsylvania Draft Horse and Mule Association will hold their annual spring clinic May 16 at the Manheim Community Farm Show grounds.

The grounds are located on Adele Avenue, Manheim, next to the Senior High School.

Each year the Association sponsors a gathering throughout the state to provide an opportunity for continued education to learn more about the care and use of the draft horse and mule.

The day will begin with registration at 8 a.m. The morning program will deal with nutrition, teeth maintenance, shoeing, braiding, and show fitting.

In the afternoon, there will be a demonstration on ultra sound pregnancy diagnostics. The remainder of the day will be dedicated to "hands-on" driving and judging.

It will be a chance for the novice horseman to experience the power and grace of the draft horse. The day will conclude with a catered meal.

The clinic is open to the general public. It will be held indoors in case of inclement weather. Reservations are needed for the meal by May 9, 1992. No advanced reservations are needed for the clinic.

For reservations and additional questions, call Lowell and Delmar Landis at (717) 569-0574 or 569-7778 or Luke Bruckhart at (717) 665-5198.

Berks County 4-H Involves All Kinds

Peter Tkack on the bulldozer clears the site of the proposed 4-H pole barn under the watchful eye of their supervisor, Dean Smith.

An apprentice member of local 542 of the Operating Engineers union, Peter Tkack clears a large load of dirt from the site of the proposed pole barn behind the 4-H Community Center.

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — It just goes to show, everybody learns with a 4-H project.

Take apprentice members of Local 542 of the Operating Engineers union, for example.

They are learning their trade by excavating and leveling the ground behind the 4-H Community Center here where a pole barn and picnic area has just begun to be built.

The apprentices usually push the earth around on a plot of land the union owns in Bern Township.

But that's the same thing over and over again, said Dean Smith, who was supervising the work at the pole barn site one recently sunny day. So the union often donates work by apprentices to nonprofit groups, to everyone's benefit.

Smith oversaw Paul Carey on the payloader and Peter Tkack on the bulldozer. Another apprentice, Allen Roberts, also helped on the job.

Working on an actual project is especially good for apprentices, Smith said, because they can see the finished product.

Rick Kauffman, 4-H extension agent, credited Wayne Lesher of Way-Har Farms, Bernville, with securing the aid of the union.

The donated services of clearing and leveling about an acre of land will amount to a savings of $10,000 to $15,000, Kauffman said.

"This is substantial, what they're giving," he said about the union's gift. Inmates of the Berks County Prison across the street also helped by clearing the land of dead wood before excavation began.

Others will donate stone and engineering expertise, he said, and anything else he can drum up.

"We've raised $30,000 so far without a major fund-raiser," Kauffman said.

Construction may begin in the fall, as Kauffman noted total costs still are not yet finalized.

But that's the way he wants it. There's no rush.

"We waited a bit before starting and decided this site (between the Ag Center and the Berks Heim Annex) was better," he said. Original plans have the proposed barn directly behind the Community Center.

But by waiting, they lucked into a bigger piece of land when the Berks County Commissioners decided to give the three-acre plot away, he said.

When finished, the pavilion will include temporary shelter for large farm animals, a show ring and seating. The picnic area will be located south of the site.

Agricultural Fan Performance And Efficiency

Fans are an important component of environmental control systems used for various animals, crops, and products. Fans are used to move air to remove moisture from a dairy barn, cool a sun-filled greenhouse, or assure air distribution within a potato storage.

Fans have three important costs. Purchase price is the most obvious cost. The amount of electricity used to operate the fan is another cost. A fan that is not suitable for its application will have a cost resulting from lost plants, poor animal health, or spoiled potatoes.

Over the life of a fan, operating costs can far exceed the purchase price of the fan. Therefore, the efficiency with which a fan will move air is important. Efficiency is expressed as the volume of air that can be moved per unit of electric power (cfm/watt). A typical inefficient fan might use several hundred more dollars worth of electricity over a 10-year period than the same size efficient model.

Another important feature of a fan is how much air it will move under load. A tractor can go faster and use less fuel when pulling a hay wagon than a four-bottom plow. The same is true with a fan. A fan will move less air against a load than it will if it is just hanging in open air.

In most agricultural applications, a fan must work against a certain level of back pressure.

Poly Square Means Healthier Calves

The Poly Square Big Foot is constructed of Opaque material to eliminate the solar effect. It blocks out sunheat-not sunlight. Poly Square's inverted ribs and 5' (W)x7'6"(L) make it the biggest unit on the market today and extremely wind resistant. It has no pop rivets which means no breaks or cracks for snow and rain to sift in. The unit weighs 100 pounds plus manger & buckets. And Poly Square Big Foot is large enough so your calf can lay in the center, away from cold walls in the winter.

New Side Hay Feeder - Made especially for Poly Square Big Foot, no other unit has this feature. Also has a center roof vent for better air movement.

A Satisfied Customer...

JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

The Eby Wrangler...
★ Better Looking ★ Better Built
★ Better Value

The Wrangler Model 2000-OH represents a new level of value in livestock trailers.

Its standard specifications, top-quality components and proven engineering are found in other Wrangler models. But the new 2000-OH is less expensive. By standardizing height and width and by limiting the number of optional accessories, Eby lowers the production costs for this model. Now you can get all our traditional craftsmanship in a top-value gooseneck.

Unlike other "budget" trailers on the market, the Wrangler 2000-OH achieves a price breakthrough without compromising quality. Consider these features, standard on the new Wranger 2000-OH:

- 7,000# Dexter Torque-Flex axles
- Steel-belted radial tires, 10-ply rating
- Aerodynamic, attractive design
- Sealed beam lights with enclosed, externally accessible wiring
- 2-year warranty

Specifications

- Available in 14', 16', 18', 20' lengths
- 7' Width
- 6'6" Inside height

MASTER MIX

SILO-BOOSTER

Why should you use Master Mix SILO BOOSTER instead of another product? SILO-BOOSTER has been proven in 25 years of on-farm use, as well as in continuous university research. With each new discovery in silage science, we have improved the original formula. Today's SILO-BOOSTER gives the most effective silage innoculant yet developed.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS

Alfalfa Ensiled With And Without SILO-BOOSTER Conducted
At The University Of Minnesota West Central Experiment Station
Morris, Minnesota Summary Of Haylage Crops

DRY MATTER RECOVERY (1)	CONTROL	SILO-BOOSTER
Amount D.M. Ensiled, lb.	26,228	30,418
Amount D.M. Removed, lb.	24,432	30,278
Recovery, %	93.2	99.5

(1) Individual loads of fresh forage were weighed before ensiling; after storage, silos were emptied completely at one time.

Composition and pH of Stored Alfalfa Ensiled With and Without SILO BOOSTER.

	CONTROL	SILO-BOOSTER
Dry Matter, %	50.66	54.98
pH	6.33	5.82
Crude Protein, %	23.64	23.45
Ammonia Nitrogen	19.76	14.80
ADIN-N. % of total N	5.76	5.58
ADF, % of D.M.	31.74	30.23
NFD, % of D.M.	42.44	41.88
Lactic Acid, % of D.M.	1.00	.87
Acetic Acid, % of D.M.	.72	.52
Propionic Acid, % of D.M.	.018	.007
Butyric Acid, % of D.M.	.119	.027

Dry matter recovery data from these conventional silos demonstrates a 6.3% difference in feedable alfalfa silage. For each 100 tons of silage, there would be an additional 6.3 tons of silage available for feeding. This is equivalent to 3.5 tons of 90% dry matter hay worth approximately $350.00. This is a $3.50 return for each $1.00 investment in SILO BOOSTER from a reduction in fermentation losses alone.

Master Mix® CENTRAL SOYA

APPLICATION: 1 Lb. of SILO-BOOSTER per ton of Forage.
Try New BIO-POWER Soluble mixed with water.
Add Feed Value To This Year's Silage By Reducing Costly Fermentation Losses

PEOPLE — THE KEY TO SUCCESS

John H. Schwartz, Ph.D.
Lancaster County
Extension Director

The success of any organization is its people. People are a very valuable resource that need to be managed.

Every poultry farm has a people base that is very important to its success. The keys to success are the same whether you are using family help or have outside employees.

There are many points to consider when managing and developing employees. Today we will take a look at four people management concepts. These include surrounding yourself with good people, developing the people around you, continuingto challenge yourself to find better ways to do things, and to be a person of action.

Surround Yourself With Good Employees

When hiring people, know what skills you need and seek people with those skills. Determine what skills they need now and what skills they could develop on the job.

In a recent discussion with agriculture employers, one change in attitude was the degree of agriculture knowledge required for many jobs. Items now considered by employers are intelligence, dependability, computer skills, record-keeping ability, and interest in the company and the job.

Specific agricultural knowledge is learned on the job. Also, take advantage of the allied industry people who service your farm. Deal with the best. The highly technical knowledge these people bring to your farm is a very valuable asset.

Develop The People Around

Every person has three needs. These are acquiring new skills and knowledge, interacting with people, and feeling needed by contributing to the organization.

If any of these three things are missing for a period of time, you will have an employee drop out. The challenge of today's manager is to know each employee personally and develop opportunities for the employee to continue their education, feel they are the member of the best team in town, on your farm, and make them feel very important.

This is true for both family as well as nonfamily employees.

Challenge Yourself

Never be happy where you are. Always be looking for better ways to do things.

Attend meetings, read books, newspapers, magazines, etc. that will keep you on the leading edge of your business.

Develop a network of outstanding people you will stay in contact with. Several phone calls a year or visit to their operations helps you to stay up to date on what is going on in agriculture.

Consider becoming active in at least one nonagricultural organization. Socializing and interacting with business and community leaders in your backyard will give you many new ideas and thoughts.

The key is you need to be involved in activities that will keep your mind working and growing.

Be A Person Of Action

There are three kinds of people: those who watch things happen, those who wander what happens, and those who make things happen.

You need to become a person of action. Do not overlook the little things. As soon as you see something that needs to be done, do it right away. Do not put it off till another time.

Do not waste time. Be able to make decisions. Nothing stops productivity than a manager who cannot make a decision.

By developing a positive attitude and attacking the job, you will be amazed at how much you will increase employee and your productivity.

People like to be associated with winners. It takes the right attitude by management to develop the winning team. This starts with respecting and developing your farm's people resources.

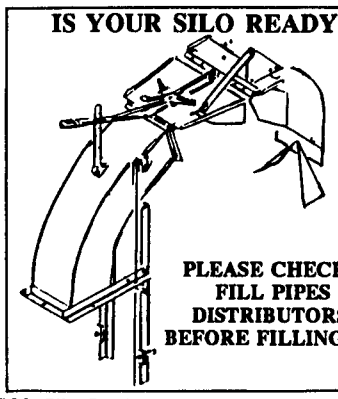
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

No Substitute For Early Weed Control

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — With postemergence grass herbicides now available for corn, some growers have been putting off shattercane and johnsongrass control until later in the growing season. New research, however, indicates that corn yields may suffer substantially as a result.

Even though postemergence herbicides do a good job, weed specialists across the Corn Belt say there is still no substitute for a comprehensive weed control plan that begins well before a single seed is planted.

A recent study reported by the North Central Weed Science Society indicates that using preplant incorporated herbicides in addition to postemergence compounds may result in significantly higher yields than post applications of Accent or Beacon alone.

In field trials, split applications of Accent or Beacon provided johnsongrass control in the high 90-percent range. But these plots yielded less than 100 bushels per acre. By contrast, plots treated with a combination of preplant incorporated Sutan+ and post-applied Accent or Beacon yielded 141 to 163 bushels per acre.

Additional research at the University of Missouri, the University of Nebraska, Kansas State University, and Western Kentucky University confirm that early-season weed control is the corn farmer's best friend.

"In all the comparisons I made, I found that the plots treated with preplant herbicides like Sutazine+ consistently ranked at the top of weed control," said Dr. Randall Currie, a researcher at Kansas State University.

In field trials against shattercane, Currie's best results came from replicated plots treated with preplant incorporated Eradicane and atrazine, followed by post-applied Beacon. They yielded an average of 200 bushels per acre.

"It's also important to consider your window of application," said Currie. "A total postemergence program can be kind of scary if you plant your corn, and then it rains for three weeks or a month. There is a distinct likelihood the weeds will be the same height or taller than the corn.

"But with a preplant treatment, you can control the initial batch of shattercane," he said. That will protect the crop from competition for moisture, sunlight, and fertilizer.

"If rain delays your post-emergence application, you'll be spraying younger, smaller shattercane, instead of larger, harder to kill, plants," said Currie.

Preplant incorporated herbicides also control a broader spectrum of weeds than Accent and Beacon, which are highly selective.

Jim Worthington, a researcher at Western Kentucky University, said, "Accent and Beacon just don't have a wide enough spectrum of control to be used by themselves. Most of the growers I talk to find they have to use them in combination with other herbicides."

Don Null, a researcher who analyzed the efficacy of Accent and Beacon against Eradicane, Sutan+ and Sutazine+ at the University of Missouri, also agrees: "Neither Accent or Beacon can act as a total program of weed control," he said. "It's just not possible."

Of course, no one formulation will ever become a cure-all for johnsongrass or shattercane. Most herbicides tend to lose their effectiveness if growers apply the same formulation year after year on the same fields.

Many researchers believe that herbicides such as Sutazine+ will generally retain their edge longer than herbicides such as Accent or Beacon. One reason is that Accent and Beacon attack only one site in the plant: the weed's ALS enzyme. As a result, weeds are more likely to become resistant to these herbicides when used year after year.

Eradicane and Sutazine+ are thiocarbamates. They attack multiple sites within the plant, so weed resistance is not a concern. However, thiocarbamates should not be used year after year in the same field because soil microbes can reduce their efficacy. The Eradicane label specifically recommends annual rotation of crops and herbicide classes.

Both Currie and Fred Roeth, a researcher at the University of Nebraska, recommend alternating thiocarbamates such as Sutazine+ with ALS inhibitors such as Accent.

"The general principle of rotating herbicides is a sound one," Currie said. If you've used an ALS inhibitor such as Accent or Beacon on corn or Pursuit on soybeans, you shouldn't use one again the following year. Instead, use a thiocarbamate such as Sutan+ or Sutazine+, he said.

Deere Mulching System For 48-, 54-Inch Decks

MOLINE, Ill — Mulching systems for single-blade mower decks have been available since the 1970s.

An effective mulching system for wider, two-blade decks became available when John Deere announced the Tricycler™ variable-opening mulching system for grass clippings and leaves.

Deere engineers have broken through the three-blade barrier with a stunning innovation — a Tricycler variable-opening mulching attachment — for 48- and 54-inch mower decks.

The exclusive Tricycler design allows the operator to set the mulching plate or baffle at one of five positions — higher positions for mulching grass clippings and lower positions for mulching leaves.

The grass clippings are chopped into fine pieces that are blown into the turf where they can decompose quickly. The leaves are pulverized and blown into the turf, where they quickly break down without adding to a thatch problem.

The new Tricycler mulching attachment can be teamed with these mowers: 48- and 54-inch commercial walk-behind mowers; F525, F710, and F725 front mowers; LX186 and LX188 lawn tractors; and GT262, 240, 260, 265, 285, and 320 lawn and garden tractors.

John Deere breaks through the three-blade barrier with new mulching system. The Tricycler™ mulching system for 48- and 54-inch decks allows the operator to mulch grass clippings and leaves on wider mowers. This is a variable-opening system with a mulching plate that can be adjusted to one of five positions — higher positions for mulching grass clippings and lower positions for pulverizing leaves.

Corn Growers Voice Concerns

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — "We believe the U.S. has already gone too far in an effort to secure the EC's acceptance of an agricultural agreement in the Uruguay round," National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) said in a joint letter to President Bush.

"To concede more to the EC for the sake of an agreement would be counterproductive to American Agriculture," the letter emphasized.

Signing on with NCGA were American Soybean Association, Corn Refiners Association, National Oilseed Processors Association, and National Sunflower Association.

Representing U.S. farmers, processors, and exporters, these organizations have long been supportive of U.S. efforts to secure an agricultural agreement in the Uruguay Round of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) that eliminates or substantially reduces distortions in world agricultural trade. However, "recent developments indicating the European Community (EC) seeks to persuade your Administration to accept an agreement harmful to our members trouble us greatly," the letter outlined.

The groups emphasized no agreement be accepted until the EC takes binding commitments to honor existing GATT obligations.

Frustrations arise as the EC continues to attack long-standing obligations entitling U.S. soybeans, soybean meal, and corn gluten feed free-trade status. A GATT dispute settlement panel has twice ruled the EC's oilseed subsidy regime is illegal.

"It is time for the EC to make a good faith effort to agree to substantive reform," NCGA and others said.

"We support the process," said NCGA President Tim Trotter, a Coal City, Ill. farmer. "But we will not sell ourselves short."

WINCO PTO GENERATORS
Power fails at the worst possible time—restart your whole farm with the number one PTO generator the world over!

ENERGX Corporation, the world's largest PTO generator manufacturer, designs Winco PTO units from the ground up for farm standby power. Built to handle motor loads for the duration of the power outage, and rated for continuous duty operation.

Big motors in your feed room groan to a halt. Vent fans, milk coolers stop. There are no lights, no heating, and no power in the house. For how long? Nobody knows! But with a Winco PTO generator, your farm will be back in business in minutes.

Winco PTO generators are available in sizes from 8KW to 75KW continuous duty. The Maxi-Watt® field coil windings provide extra capacity to restart a big farm at the busiest time of the day.

Winco PTO units will run a combination motor load of up to 1 HP per KW.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
★ Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up. By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown taht 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure. We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr. - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 yr. - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and carries a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.

* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450.00
We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets.
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200.00

Capacity and efficiency for fast harvesting

When it comes to harvesting, you can't beat the heavy-duty performance that's built into the New Holland Model 790 forage harvester. Performance starts at the cutterhead. The 19 11/16-inch wide, 12-knife cutterhead delivers a fine uniform chop that's just right for most silage feeding operations. And an electric clutch gives instant response and positive control on the reversing gearbox. The Model 790 is available with either a 540-rpm or a 1000-rpm PTO drive.

Stop in today and trade for the performance leader in harvesters—the "790" from Ford New Holland.

MAN HAD ROCK IN HIS STOMACH FOR 10 YEARS

Mr. J. North, Raleigh, N.C. said that for 10 years he felt like he had a rock in his stomach due to his yard being demolished by moles. He tried everything but nothing worked until he used MOLE-MED, A Natural Old Time Biodegradable Formula. Now he is a new man. He has a beautiful yard with no signs of moles and the rock feeling is gone.

MOLE-MED is only $8.95.

OPTIONS

When you're comparing tractors...

CONSIDER ALL YOUR OPTIONS

There's more than one way to get the work done. Ford 32- to 55-PTO-hp tractors offer you options to do more.

Compare to other tractors in this category, and you'll find Ford utility tractors offer more choices:

- 8x2, 8x8 or 16x8 Dual Power™ transmissions
- Shuttle transmission
- Quietest cab in its class
- Your choice of hydraulic systems
- One to four remotes
- Four models
- Optional fuel capacity

So when you're comparing tractors, stop by and consider your options. You'll opt for a Ford utility tractor. More of what you need.
